CompTIA Data+ Exam (2025) Sample Questions (Q78-Q83):

NEW QUESTION # 78

A data analyst receives a flat file that includes dates. The analyst needs to calculate the number of days from the dates on the file to the current date. Which of the following is the best way to complete this task?

- A. Validate the date format with logical functions and use date functions to analyze.
- B. Transform data to a numerical value and use mathematical functions.
- C. Use date functions to analyze the data with no conversion.
- D. Convert data to date format and use date functions.

Answer: D

Explanation:

This question pertains to the Data Analysis domain, focusing on date calculations. The task is to calculate the difference between dates in a file and the current date, requiring proper date handling.

* Convert data to date format and use date functions (Option A): Flat files often store dates as strings (e.g., "2023-01-01").

Converting them to a date format (e.g., using Python's datetime or SQL's TO_DATE) allows the use of date functions (e.g., DATEDIFF) to calculate the difference to the current date, which is the best approach.

* Validate the date format with logical functions and use date functions to analyze (Option B):

Validation is unnecessary if conversion handles format issues, making this overly complex.

* Use date functions to analyze the data with no conversion (Option C): Without converting to a date format, date functions may fail if the data is stored as strings.

* Transform data to a numerical value and use mathematical functions (Option D): This is inefficient and error-prone compared to using date functions.

The DA0-002 Data Analysis domain includes "applying the appropriate descriptive statistical methods," and converting to date format followed by date functions is the standard method for such calculations.

NEW QUESTION # 79

Which of the following best enables the retrieval and manipulation of data that is stored in a relational database?

- A. XML
- B. SQL
- C. Excel
- D. JavaScript

Answer: B

Explanation:

This question pertains to the Data Concepts and Environments domain, focusing on tools for interacting with relational databases. The task is to identify the best method for retrieving and manipulating data.

* XML (Option A): XML is a data format, not a language for retrieving or manipulating database data.

* SQL (Option B): SQL (Structured Query Language) is specifically designed for querying and manipulating data in relational databases (e.g., SELECT, UPDATE), making it the best choice.

* Excel (Option C): Excel can analyze data but isn't designed for direct database manipulation.

* JavaScript (Option D): JavaScript is a programming language for web development, not optimized for relational database operations.

The DA0-002 Data Concepts and Environments domain includes understanding "different types of databases," and SQL is the standard language for relational database operations.

NEW QUESTION # 80

A manager requests a report that returns results based on a user's profile. Which of the following best describes this type of report?

- A. Static
- B. Dynamic
- C. Real-time
- D. Snapshot

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 81

Given the following tables:

Individual table

ID

FirstName

LastName

John

Doe

Output

ID
FullName
JohnDoe

Which of the following is the best option to display output from FirstName and LastName as FullName?

- A. Concatenate
- B. Join
- C. Group
- D. Filter

Answer: A

Explanation:

This question falls under the Data Acquisition and Preparation domain of CompTIA Data+ DA0-002, focusing on data manipulation techniques. The task is to combine FirstName and LastName into a single FullName field (e.g., "JohnDoe").

* Concatenate (Option A): Concatenation combines two or more strings into one (e.g., using CONCAT in SQL or "+" in Python), which is the correct method to create FullName from FirstName and LastName.

* Filter (Option B): Filtering selects specific rows based on conditions, not suitable for combining fields.

* Join (Option C): Joining combines data from multiple tables, but the task involves manipulating data within a single table.

* Group (Option D): Grouping (e.g., GROUP BY in SQL) is for aggregation, not for combining fields into a new column.

The DA0-002 Data Acquisition and Preparation domain includes "executing data manipulation," and concatenation is the standard technique for combining fields like FirstName and LastName into FullName.

NEW QUESTION # 82

Which of the following data repositories stores unformatted data in its original, raw form?

- A. Data silo
- B. Data mart
- C. Data lake
- D. Data warehouse

Answer: C

Explanation:

This question pertains to the Data Concepts and Environments domain, focusing on data repositories. The task is to identify a repository that stores raw, unformatted data.

* Data warehouse (Option A): A data warehouse stores structured, processed data in a predefined schema, not raw data.

* Data silo (Option B): A data silo is an isolated repository, often structured, not designed for raw data storage.

* Data mart (Option C): A data mart is a subset of a data warehouse, also storing structured data.

* Data lake (Option D): A data lake stores raw, unformatted data in its original format (structured, semi-structured, or unstructured), making it the correct choice.

The DA0-002 Data Concepts and Environments domain includes understanding "different types of databases and data repositories," and a data lake is designed for raw data storage.
