NEW QUESTION # 122

You have an Azure Active Directory (Azure AD) tenant that syncs to an Active Directory forest. The tenant- uses through authentication.

A corporate security policy states the following:

Domain controllers must never communicate directly to the internet.

Only required software must be- installed on servers.

The Active Directory domain contains the on-premises servers shown in the following table.

You need to ensure that users can authenticate to Azure AD if a server fails.

On which server should you install an additional pass-through authentication agent?

- A. Server2
- B. Server4
- C. Server3
- D. Server1

Answer: B

Explanation:

The environment uses Azure AD Pass-through Authentication (PTA), which enables users to sign in using their on-premises passwords without storing them in the cloud. For high availability, Microsoft recommends installing multiple PTA agents on separate servers that can securely communicate with Azure AD.

From the SC-300 study material:

"Pass-through authentication agents should not be installed on domain controllers. Install agents on dedicated or member servers that have internet access and are domain-joined." Let's analyze the servers:

* Server1 (PDC emulator) and Server2 (Infrastructure master) - Domain controllers; should not directly connect to the internet or run additional software.

* Server3 (Azure AD Connect server) - Already hosts Azure AD Connect, which is sufficient for synchronization; installing PTA here would violate the "only required software" policy.

* Server4 (Unassigned member server) - Domain-joined, not a DC, and can securely communicate with Azure AD; the best candidate for installing an additional PTA agent.
