Salesforce Certified MuleSoft Catalyst Consultant Sample Questions (Q113-Q118):

NEW QUESTION # 113

An organization is adopting a Catalyst approach to transforming its enterprise from siloed retail channels to an omnichannel retail enterprise. How should the Catalyst approach differ from other delivery approaches that the organization has used in the past?

- A. The Catalyst approach will not be a "one and done" project; it will be an ongoing effort over time with multiple projects, each with its own set of objectives that collectively drive towards delivering all capabilities of an omnichannel retail enterprise
- B. The Catalyst approach should use external development teams so that internal IT teams can focus on preparing to support the deployment and ongoing maintenance of the new omnichannel enterprise
- C. The Catalyst approach will be a long-term project that delivers all necessary omnichannel capabilities after all requirements are gathered and analyzed, solutions are designed and implemented, and all new capabilities are tested
- D. The Catalyst approach will have a defined ending so that the entire organization will know when all capabilities will be delivered

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 114

An architect is proposing setting up a Center for Enablement (C4E) as part of a Catalyst engagement in support of a customer's digital transformation program. The customer's organization has been assessed as having a "low" system integration capability maturity level.

A stakeholder in the project, who is the technical director of the System Integration department, states that the organization already has an Integration Competency Center (ICC) group providing technical guidance and oversight to the implementation teams following a centralized IT governance model.

Further, an executive leadership team member confirms that statement and opposes the commitment to providing additional resources to establish and maintain a C4E.

What approach should the architect take when responding to this situation?

- A. Explain how replacing the existing ICC with a decentralized C4E can help the organization achieve its business goals
- B. Explain what the C4E is, what it does, and how it can be structured to enable the organization to build and drive asset reuse across its projects
- C. Explain how the C4E SDLC approach to project implementation makes IT project governance and guidance optional, and enables teams to be more productive and leads to lower IT costs
- D. Explain the function of the C4E and how its operational approach, which emphasizes documentation and standards instead of knowledge sharing and training, can help the organization achieve its business goals

Answer: B

(Choose Two)

- A. To remove the bottlenecks associated with centralized governance
- B. To leverage common, standardized and approved libraries, adapters, and frameworks
- C. To clear traceability to business outcomes
- D. To reuse shared services built by one project by other solutions deployed to the platform
- E. To provide alignment and tight coupling of all solutions deployed to the platform

Answer: B,D

NEW QUESTION # 117

What principles should be incorporated when scoping engagements using the Catalyst approach?

- A. Flexibility to adapt to stakeholder needs and contexts
- B. Rigidity in processes to ensure compliance
