ISQI ISTQB Certified Tester Foundation Level (CTFL) v4.0 Sample Questions (Q64-Q69):

NEW QUESTION # 64

Consider a review for a high-level architectural document written by a software architect. The architect does most of the review preparation work, including distributing the document to reviewers before the review meeting. However, reviewers are not required to analyze the document in advance, and during the review meeting the software architect explains the document step by step. The only goal of this review is to establish a common understanding of the software architecture that will be used in a software development project.

Which of the following review types does this review refer to?

- A. Informal review
- B. Inspection
- C. Walkthrough
- D. Audit

Answer: C

Explanation:

This answer is correct because a walkthrough is a type of review where the author of the work product leads the review process and explains the work product to the reviewers. The reviewers are not required to prepare for the review in advance, and the main objective of the walkthrough is to establish a common understanding of the work product and to identify any major defects or issues. A walkthrough is usually informal and does not follow a defined process or roles. In this case, the review for a high-level architectural document written by a software architect matches the characteristics of a walkthrough. NEW QUESTION # 65

Which of the following statements is true?

- A. The test techniques that can be used to design white-box tests are described in the ISO/IEC 25010 standard
- B. Non-functional testing includes testing of both technical and non-technical quality characteristics
- C. Functional testing focuses on what the system should do while non-functional testing on the internal structure of the system
- D. Testers who perform functional tests are generally expected to have more technical skills than testers who perform non-functional tests

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

Non-functional testing includes testing of both technical and non-technical quality characteristics.

Non-functional testing is the process of testing the quality attributes of a system, such as performance, usability, security, reliability, etc. Non-functional testing can be applied at any test level and can use both black-box and white-box test techniques. Non-functional testing can cover both technical aspects, such as response time, throughput, resource consumption, etc., and non-technical aspects, such as user satisfaction, accessibility, compliance, etc. Therefore, option B is the correct answer.

NEW QUESTION # 66

Which of the following statements best describes how configuration management supports testing?

- A. Configuration management is an administrative discipline that includes change control, which is the process of controlling the changes to identified items referred to as Configuration Items'
- B. Configuration management helps ensure that all relevant project documentation and software items are uniquely identified in all their versions and therefore can be unambiguously referenced in test documentation
- C. Configuration management is an approach to interoperability testing where tests are executed in the cloud, as the cloud can provide cost-effective access to multiple configurations of the test environments
- D. Configuration management helps reduce testing effort by identifying a manageable number of test environment configurations in which to test the software, out of all possible configurations of the environment in which the software will be released

Explanation:

This answer is correct because configuration management is a process of establishing and maintaining consistency of a product's performance, functional, and physical attributes with its requirements, design, and operational information throughout its life. Configuration management helps ensure that all relevant project documentation and software items are uniquely identified in all their versions and therefore can be unambiguously referenced in test documentation. This supports testing by providing traceability, consistency, and control over the test artifacts and the software under test. NEW QUESTION # 67

The tests at the bottom layer of the test pyramid:

- A. run faster than the tests at the top layer of the pyramid
- B. cover larger pieces of functionalities than the tests at the top layer of the pyramid
- C. are defined as 'UI Tests' or 'End-To-End tests' in the different models of the pyramid
- D. are unscripted tests produced by experience-based test techniques

Answer: A

Explanation:

The tests at the bottom layer of the test pyramid run faster than the tests at the top layer of the pyramid because they are more focused, isolated, and atomic. They usually test individual units or components of the software system, such as classes, methods, or functions. They are also easier to maintain and execute, as they have fewer dependencies and interactions with other parts of the system. The tests at the top layer of the test pyramid, on the other hand, are slower because they cover larger pieces of functionalities, such as user interfaces, workflows, or end-to-end scenarios. They also have more dependencies and interactions with other systems, such as databases, networks, or external services. They are more complex and costly to maintain and execute, as they require more setup and teardown procedures, test data, and test environments. References:

NEW QUESTION # 68

Which ONE of the following options BEST describes the purpose of confirmation testing versus regression testing?

- A. The purpose of confirmation testing is to confirm that the defect giving rise to a failure has been successfully fixed. The regression test aims to ensure that no defects have been introduced or discovered in unmodified areas of the software as a result of the changes made.
- B. Regression testing and confirmation testing are interchangeable and serve the same purpose.
- C. Confirmation testing verifies all system requirements, while regression testing ensures that no additional test cases are needed.
- D. Confirmation testing ensures the entire system functions as expected, whereas regression testing focuses only on modified components.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Confirmation testing is performed after a defect is fixed to confirm it no longer exists (A). Regression testing ensures new defects have not been introduced in unchanged parts of the system. Regression testing is broader than confirmation testing and covers unmodified areas affected by the changes. Options B, C, and D misrepresent the relationship and scope of these tests.
