NEW QUESTION # 79

You have a Microsoft Teams deployment.

You have two teams that have meeting requirements as shown in the following table.

You need to recommend which type of meeting to use for each team.

What should you recommend for each team? To answer, drag the meeting types to the correct teams. Each meeting type may be used once, more than once, or not at all. You may need to drag the split bar between panes or scroll to view content.

NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point.

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation:

Box 1: Live event

Live events

Live events are structured meetings that enable your organization to schedule and produce events that stream to large online audiences-up to 20,000 people. With live events, the audience interaction is a managed Q & A experience.

Note: Meetings, webinars, and live events are all types of meetings, but webinars and live events provide additional control for the organizer over the conversation and participants. Webinars provide two-way interaction while live events provide a managed Q & A experience.

The different types of meetings also have different participant limits and participant capabilities.

* Live events

Number of participants: Up to 20,000

- Broadcast to large audiences.
- Moderated Q & A for audience interaction.
- Can specify producers and presenters, including external presenters.
- Supports more advanced production capabilities.

Registration supported: no

Box 2: Webinar

Webinars

Webinars are structured meetings where presenters and participants have clear roles. A key difference between webinars and Teams meetings is that webinars support robust registration management, customizable event and registration site, and event-oriented default meeting options.

Note: Meetings, webinars, and live events are all types of meetings, but webinars and live events provide additional control for the organizer over the conversation and participants. Webinars provide two-way interaction while live events provide a managed Q & A experience.

The different types of meetings also have different participant limits and participant capabilities.
