The processes must run without human intervention when possible.

You need to determine which flow type should be used for each process.

Which flow type should you use? To answer, drag the appropriate processes to the correct flow types. Each process may be used once, more than once, or not at all. You may need to drag the split bar between panes or scroll to view content.

NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point.

Answer:

Explanation:

□ Explanation:

Box 1: Attended desktop flow

Desktop flows are used to automate tasks on the Web or the desktop.

To run an attended desktop flow, you need to have an active Windows user session that matches the name of the user configured for your connection.

Note: Web applications are critical components of most organizations, and they are commonly used to access data from servers.

Most CRM and ERP platforms run through web browsers, while the most popular business productivity tools are web services.

Web applications are unquestionably an integral part of the technological infrastructure of most companies.

To provide automation solutions for these applications, Power Automate Desktop supports all major browsers through its web automation actions.

Box 2: Unattended desktop flow.

Unattended desktop flows are best for applications that do not need human supervision.
