Juniper Mist AI Wireless, Specialist (JNCIS-MistAI-Wireless) Sample Questions (Q29-Q34):

NEW QUESTION # 29

You have received a Marvis Actions Missing VLAN notification.
In this scenario, where is the problem?

- A. A client is missing the VLAN.
- B. A switch is missing the VLAN.
- C. An access point is missing the VLAN.
- D. The gateway is missing the VLAN.

Answer: C

Explanation:

According to the JNCIS-MistAI Certification page<sup>3</sup>, a Marvis Actions Missing VLAN notification indicates that an access point is missing a VLAN that is configured on other access points in the same site.

NEW QUESTION # 31

By default, which 6 GHz channels does Juniper Mist radio resource management (RRM) use?

- A. Channels 1, 9, and 13
- B. Channels 13 through 221
- C. The preferred scanning channels (PSCs)
- D. The channels you select as primary channels

Answer: C

Explanation:

In Juniper Networks Mist AI Wireless, Radio Resource Management (RRM) is designed to optimize RF performance automatically while minimizing client impact. With the introduction of Wi-Fi 6E and the 6 GHz band, Juniper Mist follows industry standards and client behavior to ensure efficient and reliable operation.

By default, Mist RRM uses the Preferred Scanning Channels (PSCs) in the 6 GHz spectrum.

The 6 GHz band introduces a very large number of available channels, which creates challenges for client discovery, scanning efficiency, and roaming speed. To address this, the IEEE defined Preferred Scanning Channels (PSCs)-a specific subset of 6 GHz channels that access points advertise and clients prioritize during active and passive scanning. These PSCs allow clients to discover networks faster without having to scan the entire 6 GHz channel set.

Juniper Mist RRM automatically selects and operates on these PSCs by default to:

- * Improve client discovery and association times
  - * Reduce unnecessary scanning overhead
  - * Enhance roaming performance
  - * Maintain compatibility across a wide range of Wi-Fi 6E client devices
- Mist continuously evaluates RF conditions using telemetry and AI-driven analysis, but it intentionally limits default operation to PSCs to balance performance, efficiency, and client interoperability. Administrators can override defaults and customize channel plans if required, but PSCs remain the recommended baseline for most deployments.

The incorrect options are explained as follows:

- * Option B is incorrect because Mist RRM does not require manual primary channel selection by default.
  - * Option C refers to 2.4 GHz non-overlapping channels, not 6 GHz.
  - * Option D represents the full 6 GHz channel range, which is not practical for default scanning or operation due to client limitations.
- Therefore, the correct answer is the preferred scanning channels (PSCs), which Juniper Mist RRM uses by default in the 6 GHz band to ensure optimal Wi-Fi 6E performance.

NEW QUESTION # 32

An organization has two sites: New York and London. They want to apply a consistent set of WLANs, security policies, and RF settings to all APs in the New York site. What is the most efficient way to achieve this in the Mist UI?

- A. Configure each AP in New York individually.
- B. Create a Device Profile for each AP model.
- C. Use a Template and apply it to the New York site.
- D. Use Marvis to copy settings between APs.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 33

An administrator wants to use Marvis to proactively validate the network even during off-hours when no users are present. Which two statements accurately describe how Marvis Minis accomplishes this? (Choose 2.)

- A. It can be initiated on-demand by the administrator or triggered automatically by Marvis when it detects potential issues.
- B. It can only test for the availability of the default gateway.
- C. It uses a dedicated hardware appliance at each site to act as a test client.
- D. It uses an access point to act as a synthetic client, simulating the full user connection process.
- E. It relies on data collected from real user devices that are left on overnight.

Answer: A,D
