Answer:

Explanation:

A 10-ml oral dose syringe

NEW QUESTION # 46

The administration of ciprofloxacin tablets with milk could cause the inhibition of what pharmacokinetic process?

- A. Metabolism
- B. Distribution
- C. Excretion
- D. Absorption

Answer: D

Explanation:

Ciprofloxacin is a fluoroquinolone antibiotic that chelates (binds) with divalent and trivalent cations such as calcium found in milk. This interaction forms an insoluble complex, significantly reducing ciprofloxacin's absorption in the gastrointestinal (GI) tract, leading to decreased bioavailability and reduced therapeutic effect.

- * B. Distribution# Incorrect; milk does not directly impact the distribution of ciprofloxacin in the bloodstream.
- * C. Metabolism# Incorrect; ciprofloxacin is primarily metabolized in the liver, and milk does not inhibit its enzymatic breakdown.
- * D. Excretion# Incorrect; ciprofloxacin is mainly excreted by the kidneys, and milk does not significantly impact this process.

Other Answer Choices Explained: Pharmacist's Recommendation: Patients should take ciprofloxacin at least 2 hours before or 6 hours after consuming dairy products to avoid reduced drug absorption.

NEW QUESTION # 47

Which of the following questions from a nurse must be referred to a pharmacist?

- A. "Can I piggyback my patient's IV antibiotic with her heparin drip?"
- B. "What is the schedule for my patient's IV antibiotic?"
- C. "What is the generic name for the antibiotic the prescriber wrote?"
- D. "Does the IV antibiotic require prior authorization from my patient's insurance?"

Answer: A

Explanation:

* Drug interactions (like IV compatibility with heparin) must be evaluated by a pharmacist to avoid adverse effects.

* Pharmacy technicians can answer questions about generic names, drug schedules, and insurance issues but cannot provide clinical recommendations.
