Salesforce Platform Developer II Sample Questions (Q160-Q165):

NEW QUESTION # 160

A company has an Apex process that makes multiple extensive database operations and web service callouts. The database processes and web services can take a long time to run and must be run sequentially.

How should the developer write this Apex code without running into governor limits and system limitations?

- A. Use Limits class to stop entire process once governor limits are reached.
- B. Use Apex Scheduler to schedule each process.

- C. Use multiple `Queueable` methods for each process and callout.
- D. Use `Queueable Apex` to chain the jobs to run sequentially.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 161

Refer to the exhibit

Users of this Visualforce page complain that the page does a full refresh every time the Search button is pressed. What should the developer do to ensure that a partial refresh is made so that only the section identified with opportunity List is re-drawn on the screen?

- A. Implement the `render` attribute on the `<apex:commandButton>` tag.
- B. Implement the `<apex:actionfunction>` tag with `immediate = true`.
- C. Ensure the action method search returns null.
- D. Enclose the DATA table within the `<apex:actionRegion>` tag.

Answer: A

Explanation:

To ensure that only a part of the Visualforce page is refreshed, developers can use the `reRender` attribute of the `<apex:commandButton>` tag. This attribute specifies the IDs of the components that should be re-rendered as a result of the action method being completed. In this case, setting the `reRender` attribute to the ID of the `<apex:pageBlockSection>` that contains the opportunity list will cause only that section to be updated on the page, resulting in a partial page refresh. The correct answer is B because it uses the `reRender` attribute correctly to update only the specific part of the page (opportunityList) without a full page refresh.

NEW QUESTION # 162

Which statement is true regarding the use of user input as part of a dynamic SOQL query?

- A. The `String.format()` method should be used to prevent injection.
- B. Free text input should not be allowed, to avoid SOQL injection.
- C. The string should be URL encoded by the input form to prevent errors.
- D. Quotes should be escaped to protect against SOQL injection.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 163

A developer is asked to look into an issue where a scheduled Apex is running into DML limits. Upon investigation, the developer finds that the number of records processed by the scheduled Apex has recently increased to more than 10,000.

What should the developer do to eliminate the limit exception error?

- A. Use the `@future` annotation.
- B. Use platform events.
- C. Implement the `Batchable` interface.
- D. Implement the `Queueable` interface.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The best way to eliminate the limit exception error is to implement the `Batchable` interface. The `Batchable` interface allows the developer to create a class that can process large sets of data in batches, and execute logic for each batch of records. The developer can use the `Database.executeBatch` method to invoke the batch class, and specify the batch size and the scope of records to process. This way, the developer can avoid hitting the DML limits, as each batch of records will have its own set of governor limits. Using the `@future` annotation will not help, as it will only defer the execution of the method to a later time, but it will not split the records into batches, and it will still hit the DML limits. Implementing the `Queueable` interface will not help, as it will only allow the developer to chain asynchronous jobs, but it will not split the records into batches, and it will still hit the DML limits. Using platform events will not help, as they are used to communicate changes in data or processes across the system, but they will not split the records into batches, and they will still hit the DML limits. #### NEW QUESTION # 164

As part of a new integration, a developer is asked to implement a new custom search functional that is capable of performing unrestricted Queries and can account for all values within a custom picklist field. Type_c, on the Opportunity object. The search feature must also account for NULL values.

The organization-wide default for the Opportunity object is set to Public Read-Only, and a new custom index has been created for the type_c, field. There are more than 5 million Opportunity records within the environment, and a considerable amount of the existing records have NULL values for the picklist.

Which technique should the developer implement to maximize performance when querying NULL values?

- A. Perform two SOQL query; one to query Opportunities where Type c _ NULL, and another to query where Type_c = Null, then join the result set using Apex.
- B. Use the OR operator to combine WHERE Causes to strictly search for each value within the picklist, including Type__ c =NULL.
- C. Create a formula field that substitutes Null values for a sting of text, create an index for the formula field, then use the formula within the where cause.
- D. Use a SOSL query to return ALL opportunities that have a value of NULL in any field.

Answer: A
