EC-COUNCIL EC Council Certified Incident Handler (ECIH v3) Sample Questions (Q106-Q111):

NEW QUESTION # 106

Aarav, an IT support specialist, identifies that multiple employees have engaged with an email promoting free shopping vouchers, which appears suspicious. To minimize the potential threat, he instructs staff to report the message, classify it as junk, and remove it from their inboxes. He further advises them not to interact with similar messages in the future, even if they seem to come from internal contacts. Which best practice is Aarav reinforcing?

- A. Disable preview pane in the inbox
- B. Sort emails by priority
- C. Digitally sign email attachments
- D. Avoid replying to or forwarding suspicious emails

Answer: D

Explanation:

This scenario focuses on user-driven mitigation of phishing threats, a key element of the ECIH Email Security Incident Handling module. Aarav's guidance directly reinforces one of the most important user best practices: never engage with suspicious emails.

Option D is correct because avoiding replies or forwarding suspicious emails prevents attackers from validating active accounts, spreading malware, or escalating social engineering attacks. ECIH emphasizes that user interaction often determines the success of phishing campaigns, making awareness and behavior critical controls.

Option A is unrelated to security. Option B is a sender-side control, not a user response. Option C may reduce accidental clicks but does not address the broader behavioral risk.

By instructing users to report, delete, and avoid engagement, Aarav strengthens the organization's human firewall, which ECIH recognizes as essential in reducing phishing impact.

NEW QUESTION # 107

Which of the following is an attack that occurs when a malicious program causes a user's browser to perform an unwanted action on a trusted site for which the user is currently authenticated?

- A. Cross-site scripting
- B. Insecure direct object references
- C. Cross-site request forgery
- D. SQL injection

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 108

Lena, a SOC analyst, observes a pattern of unusual login attempts originating from multiple foreign IP addresses tied to shared drive links circulating within the organization. These links were embedded in emails appearing to come from the HR department and marked with urgent subject lines. Upon deeper inspection, Lena finds multiple similar messages still pending in the mail server's delivery queue. To prevent widespread exposure, she takes immediate action to eliminate these messages before they reach employees' inboxes.

Which incident response action best describes Lena's action?

- A. Flagging login anomalies for correlation in the SIEM
- B. Isolating compromised mailboxes from the email relay
- C. Proactively purging queued phishing emails from the server
- D. Initiating forensic triage on suspicious attachments

Answer: C

Explanation:

This scenario demonstrates a preventive containment action during an email security incident. The ECIH Email Security Incident Handling module emphasizes that once phishing is identified, responders should immediately prevent further delivery to reduce organizational exposure.

Option A is correct because Lena removes malicious emails from the mail server's delivery queue before users receive them. This action directly reduces risk by preventing additional users from clicking malicious links or submitting credentials. ECIH identifies email purging as a critical containment technique during active phishing campaigns.

Option B is an investigative action, not containment. Option C applies after delivery and compromise. Option D addresses already compromised accounts rather than preventing exposure.

By stopping malicious emails before delivery, Lena aligns with ECIH best practices for rapid containment of email-based threats.

NEW QUESTION # 109

James is a professional hacker and is employed by an organization to exploit their cloud services. In order to achieve this, James created anonymous access to the cloud services to carry out various attacks such as password and key cracking, hosting malicious data, and DDoS attacks.

Which of the following threats is he posing to the cloud platform?

- A. Abuse and nefarious use of cloud services
- B. Insecure interface and APIs
- C. Insufficient due diligence
- D. Data breach/loss

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 110

Richard is analyzing a corporate network. After an alert in the network's IPS, he identified that all the servers are sending huge amounts of traffic to the website abc.xyz. What type of information security attack vectors have affected the network?

- A. Botnet
- B. IOT threats
- C. Ransomware
- D. Advance persistent three Is

Answer: A

Explanation:

When a corporate network's servers are sending huge amounts of traffic to a specific website, as detected by the network's Intrusion Prevention System (IPS), this behavior is indicative of a Botnet attack. A Botnet is a network of compromised computers, often referred to as "bots," that are controlled remotely by an attacker, typically without the knowledge of the owners of the computers. The attacker can command these bots to execute distributed denial-of-service (DDoS) attacks, send spam, or conduct other malicious activities. In this scenario, the servers behaving as bots and targeting a website with large volumes of traffic suggests that they have been co-opted into a Botnet to potentially perform a DDoS attack on the website abc.xyz.

References: Incident Handler (ECIH v3) courses and study guides discuss various types of cyber threats and attack vectors, including Botnets and their role in distributed cyber attacks.
