Adobe Experience Manager DevOps Engineer Expert Sample Questions (Q108-Q113):

NEW QUESTION # 108

What is the primary function of Adobe Cloud Manager?

- A. Automating deployments and managing cloud environments
- B. Optimizing AEM workflows and process automation
- C. Configuring replication agents for content delivery
- D. Managing user roles and permissions in AEM

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 109

After deploying a new OSGi configuration, users report that they can no longer access published content.

What should be your first troubleshooting step?

- A. Restart the publish instance to refresh the configurations
- B. Disable all replication agents and reconfigure them
- C. Check error logs in /system/console/slinglog for possible misconfigurations
- D. Restore the default OSGi configurations from an earlier backup

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 110

A corporate customer of AEM as a Cloud Service plans to launch a new feature on the website. This feature uses an internal Java API that is available in the artifact repository managed by IT. Authentication to the repository is secured with Basic Authentication. The DevOps engineer needs to make this dependency available to Cloud Manager. What should the DevOps engineer do?

- A. Add a file to the project at path .cloudmanager/maven/settings.xml and use the command aio cloudmanager:set-pipeline-variables.
- B. Download the Java API dependency and add it to the project Git repository under the path ui.apps/src/main/content/jcr_root.
- C. Add the Basic Authentication credentials directly inside the root pom.xml file.
- D. Use a secure CI/CD job to upload the Java API dependency to the adobe-public nexus repository.

Answer: A

Explanation:

If a Cloud Manager build requires dependencies from a private, password-protected corporate artifact repository, the DevOps engineer must provide Cloud Manager with a custom Maven settings file to handle the authentication. This is done by placing a file at .cloudmanager/maven/settings.xml in the root of the AEM Git repository. Because hardcoding Basic Authentication credentials in Git is a massive security risk, the credentials inside the settings.xml should reference environment variables. The DevOps engineer then uses the Adobe I/O CLI (aio cloudmanager:set-pipeline-variables) to inject the actual username and password as secure pipeline secrets.

NEW QUESTION # 111

A DevOps engineer needs to perform initial onboarding of users who need to have admin privileges to the AEM as a Cloud Service instances.

What must the DevOps engineer do?

- A. Configure admin privileges in the Dispatcher configuration
- B. Add users to the Administrators group via the Oak LDAP synchronization
- C. Add users to the AEM Administrators-xxx product profile via the Admin Console
- D. Add users to the Administrators group on the AEM instances

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 112

A DevOps engineer needs to deploy a branch to the Stage Environment, so UAT testing can begin. The engineer starts a Production Pipeline with a manual trigger. The Code Scanning results return the following summary:

Security Rating: A

Reliability Rating: A

Maintainability Rating: A

Code Coverage: 10%

Summary: Partial Pass

Which two actions should the DevOps engineer take? (Choose two.)

- A. Request the developer to resolve Code Coverage issues.
- B. Start a new Deployment Pipeline with manual override.
- C. Modify the Pipeline to use On Git Changes trigger.
- D. Override this build step and proceed with deployment.

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

In Adobe Cloud Manager, the Code Quality scanning step acts as a quality gate. A standard requirement is 50% unit test Code Coverage. Because it achieved only 10%, it triggered a "Partial Pass". For a Partial Pass on a non-critical metric (unlike a critical security failure), Cloud Manager allows users with the appropriate role (Deployment Manager) to manually override the failure and proceed with the deployment-which is necessary to unblock UAT testing (Option C). However, the root cause is technical debt; the DevOps engineer must also request that the development team write unit tests to resolve the coverage issue for future builds (Option A).
