NEW QUESTION # 26
Which three can be done using Data Guard Broker?

- A. Create a new physical standby database.
- B. Define logical standby database skip rules.
- C. Automating failover to a specified target standby database.
- D. Configuring the standby control file, server parameter file, and data files for a standby database.
- E. Converting physical standby databases to snapshot standby databases.

NEW QUESTION # 27
Which three types of backups offload ........ with the primary database in a data Guard

- A. Data files
- B. Archive logs
- C. Control files
- D. Online logs
- E. Password files
- F. Broker configuration files

Answer: A,B,C

Explanation:
In a Data Guard environment, you can offload the backups of certain database components to a physical standby database. Incremental backups of a standby database are interchangeable with the primary database, meaning you can apply a backup taken on a standby database to a primary database and vice versa. This includes control files, data files, and archive logs. Backups of control files and nonstandby control files are interchangeable. You can restore a standby control file on a primary database and a primary control file on a physical standby database, demonstrating their interchangeability and the ability to offload control file backups to one database in a Data Guard environment.

NEW QUESTION # 28
Which three Data Guard monitoring activities may be performed using Enterprise Manager Cloud Control?

- A. You can set a critical threshold on the redo generation rate metric for a primary database.
- B. You can monitor the redo apply rate on a logical standby database.
- C. You can check if redo apply needs to be tuned.
- D. You can set a warning threshold on the redo generation rate metric for a physical standby database.
- E. You can monitor the redo apply rate on a snapshot standby database.
- F. You can check the potential data loss in the event of a disaster.

Answer: A,B,F

Explanation:
Enterprise Manager Cloud Control offers comprehensive monitoring capabilities for Oracle Data Guard environments. It enables monitoring the rate at which redo is being applied on a logical standby database (A), which is crucial for ensuring that the standby database is keeping up with the changes from the primary. It also allows setting thresholds on performance metrics, such as the redo generation rate on the primary database (B), to alert administrators when values exceed critical or warning thresholds. Additionally, it provides the capability to estimate the potential data loss in the event of a disaster (E), helping in disaster recovery planning and ensuring business continuity.
References:Oracle Enterprise Manager Cloud Control documentation provides extensive information on its monitoring features for Oracle Data Guard, including setting thresholds, estimating potential data loss, and tracking redo apply rates.
