NEW QUESTION # 251

When sudden widespread destruction of data both on the computer system and on the peripheral devices occurs, the machine is possibly infected with a:

- A. Catastrophic Virus
- B. Innocuous Bug
- C. Hostile worm
- D. Trojan Horse

Answer: A

Explanation:

A catastrophic virus causes widespread and often irrecoverable damage to data on a system and its connected devices. Such viruses are designed to rapidly corrupt, delete, or overwrite data, leading to system failure and loss of operational capability.

Innocuous Bug (A) implies minimal or no harm.

Hostile worm (C) can be destructive but is not a defined term for this scenario.

Trojan Horse (D) is deceptive but does not usually cause sudden widespread destruction immediately.

NEW QUESTION # 252

The introduction of holography into badge control systems reduces the chance of:

- A. Security
- B. Intrusion
- C. Counterfeiting
- D. Theft

Answer: C

Explanation:

Holography on ID badges provides a unique, hard-to-replicate visual feature that significantly reduces the chances of badge counterfeiting. Holograms are difficult to duplicate with standard printing technologies, thus enhancing the integrity of badge-based access control systems.

Theft (A) and Intrusion (C) are indirect risks that holography helps mitigate by reducing counterfeiting.

Security (D) is a broad concept rather than a specific risk being addressed.

- A. Control authority
- B. Staff authority
- C. Dominance authority
- D. Financial authority

Answer: B

Explanation:

Staff authority occurs when individuals (such as a chief executive officer or department head) are given delegated authority by their superior but do not sit directly in the operational chain of command.
