A is the correct answer because when in maintenance mode, KPIs and notable events will begin to be generated again once the window is over. Maintenance mode is a feature of ITSI that allows you to temporarily suspend alerts and health score calculations for a service or an entity during planned maintenance or downtime. During maintenance mode, KPI searches still run, but the results are buffered until the window is over. Once the window is over, the buffered results are processed and alerts and health scores are generated if necessary. Reference: [Overview of maintenance windows in ITSI]

Which ITSI components are required before a module can be created?

- A. One or more correlation searches and their associated entities.
- B. One or more entity import saved searches.
- C. One or more services with KPIs and their associated base searches.
- D. One or more datamodels.

Answer: D

Before a module can be created in Splunk IT Service Intelligence (ITSI), it is essential to have one or more datamodels established. Datamodels in Splunk provide a structured format for organizing and interpreting data, which is crucial for modules within ITSI. Modules often rely on datamodels to extract, transform, and present data in a meaningful way, especially when dealing with complex datasets across various sources.

Datamodels serve as the foundation for the module's ability to categorize and analyze data efficiently, enabling the creation of KPIs, services, and visualizations that are aligned with the specific needs of the module. Having these datamodels in place ensures that the module can function correctly and provide valuable insights into the monitored IT environments.
