NEW QUESTION # 99

An administrator is monitoring third-party WLAN transmitters in HPE Aruba Networking Central and some of them are classified as rogue and suspected rogue.

How are suspected rogues classified when using the default classification method for the rule "Suspected AP On-Prem" in HPE Aruba Networking Central?

- A. signal level = "-65 dbM" AND WLAN classification = "On-Interfering"
- B. signal level = "-65 dbM" AND WLAN classification = "On-Prem"
- C. signal level = "-50 dbM" AND WLAN classification = "On Wire"
- D. signal level = "-50 dbM" AND WLAN classification = "On-Interfering"

Answer: B

Explanation:

In HPE Aruba Networking Central, the default classification rule "Suspected AP On-Prem" is triggered when an AP is detected with a signal strength of -65 dBm or stronger (indicating it is nearby/on-premises) and the WLAN classification is On-Prem. This allows administrators to flag potentially unauthorized APs within the organization's premises.

NEW QUESTION # 101

A customer has set a requirement for VLAN 151 to be an isolated VLAN. A colleague has copied and pasted a partial configuration, but you do not achieve the desired outcome.

This is the code that was added:

□ What should be added to the configuration before this code to achieve the desired result?

- A. □
