NEW QUESTION # 77

You want a dataflow to run regularly.

What are the two best-practice options to configure this?

Note: There are 2 correct answers to this question.

- A. Use extensions and schedule the dataflow using an extension endpoint.
- B. Use the dataflow scheduler of the Console and add a schedule.
- C. Use the idx.createScheduling endpoint via an API call.
- D. Use the idx.setDataflow endpoint via an API call.

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

To configure a dataflow to run regularly, SAP recommends two best-practice options:

* Option A: Correct. Using the dataflow scheduler in the SAP Customer Data Cloud Console is the most straightforward way to configure regular execution. You can define the schedule directly in the UI.

* Option B: Incorrect. The idx.setDataflow endpoint is used to update dataflow configurations, not to schedule them.

* Option C: Correct. Using extensions and scheduling the dataflow via an extension endpoint provides flexibility and allows for advanced scheduling scenarios, such as triggering the dataflow based on external events.

* Option D: Incorrect. The idx.createScheduling endpoint is not a valid API endpoint for scheduling dataflows.

Note: There are 3 correct answers to this question.

- A. LoginId
- B. signature Timestamp
- C. UID
- D. UIDSignature
- E. userKey

Answer: B,C,D

Explanation:

To perform signature validation and verify the authenticity of an API request in SAP Customer Data Cloud, the following data is required:

* Option A: Correct. The UIDSignature is a cryptographic signature generated using the user's unique identifier (UID) and a secret key. It ensures the integrity and authenticity of the UID.

* Option B: Correct. The UID (unique identifier) is the user's unique ID in the system. It is used as part of the signature validation process to ensure the request corresponds to the correct user.

* Option C: Incorrect. The userKey is not directly involved in signature validation. It is typically used for API key-based authentication.

* Option D: Incorrect. The LoginID (e.g., email or username) is not required for signature validation. It is used for identifying users during login but is not part of the signature validation process.

* Option E: Correct. The signature timestamp ensures that the request is time-bound and prevents replay attacks by verifying that the signature was generated within a valid timeframe.

NEW QUESTION # 80

You are building a dataflow to transfer existing users' subscriptions from the marketing system to SAP Customer Data Cloud. The marketing system will provide a PGP-encrypted file and place it in an S3 bucket. All records that fail to update will be zipped and sent back to the S3 bucket.

Which actions will you perform during the creation of the dataflow?

Note: There are 2 correct answers to this question.

- A. Add an error handling step after a datasource.write.gigya.account component.
- B. Add an error handling step after a datasource.read.amazon.s3 component.
- C. Add a file.decrypt.pgp component and a file.compress.zip component.
- D. Add a file.encrypt.pgp component and a file.uncompress.zip component.

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

When building a dataflow to transfer existing users' subscriptions from a marketing system to SAP Customer Data Cloud, the following actions are necessary:

- * Decrypt the PGP-encrypted file: Since the source file is encrypted, you must use thefile.decrypt.pgp component to decrypt it before processing.

- * Handle errors during account updates: After writing data to SAP Customer Data Cloud using the

- datasource.write.gigya.accountcomponent, you should add an error-handling step to capture records that fail to update.

- * Compress failed records: Failed records need to be zipped and sent back to the S3 bucket. Thefile.

- compress.zipcomponent is used for this purpose.

- * Option B: Adding an error-handling step afterdatasource.read.amazon.s3is unnecessary because errors at this stage are typically related to file retrieval, not data processing.

- * Option D: Thefile.encrypt.pgpanfile.uncompress.zipcomponents are irrelevant to this scenario, as the requirement is to decrypt and compress, not encrypt or uncompress.
