Note: There are 1 correct answers to this question.

- A. Persona
- B. Observe
- C. Blue Ocean REICC
- D. Multiplication

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 71

What is an output of the validation phase? Note: There is 1 correct answers to this question.

- A. Persona descriptions
- B. Stakeholder map
- C. Structured feedback.
- D. Unstructured data

Answer: C

Explanation:

The validation phase in SAP Design Thinking focuses on testing prototypes and gathering actionable insights from users and stakeholders. The primary goal is to refine solutions based on real-world feedback. Here's why the correct answer is A:

* Structured feedback (A): During the validation phase, structured feedback is collected through methods such as user testing, interviews, and observations. This feedback is systematic and organized, allowing teams to identify patterns, validate assumptions, and iterate on their prototypes effectively.

SAP emphasizes the importance of structured feedback to ensure clarity and alignment with user needs.

Incorrect Options:

* B. Unstructured data: While unstructured data may be gathered during user interactions, it is not the primary output of the validation phase. SAP Design Thinking prioritizes structured feedback to facilitate decision-making and iteration.

* C. Stakeholder map: Stakeholder maps are typically created during the empathy or define phases to understand the ecosystem of users and stakeholders. They are not an output of the validation phase.

* D. Persona descriptions: Personas are developed during the empathy phase to represent user archetypes. They are not an output of the validation phase but rather a tool used earlier in the process.

NEW QUESTION # 72

You are in the post-production phase of a Design Thinking workshop. What content elements would you recommend for a software solution draft? Note: There are 2 correct answers to this question.

- A. Photos grasping the workshop atmosphere.
- B. Mock-up or click-through simulation
- C. High-level architecture design
- D. Research and ideation results

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

In the post-production phase of a Design Thinking workshop, the goal is to document the outcomes and create tangible artifacts that can be used for further development or stakeholder communication. Here's a detailed explanation of why the correct answers are A and D:

* Why this is correct: The research and ideation results form the foundation of the software solution draft. These include insights gathered during the Empathize and Define phases, as well as the ideas generated during the Ideation phase. Documenting these results ensures that the solution is grounded in user needs and aligns with the problem statement defined earlier in the process.

NEW QUESTION # 73

A workshop that you coached resulted in some paper-based sketches and low-fidelity prototypes of a software application user interface. Why would you recommend the creation of mock-ups and visual simulations as a good way to drive the workshop results forward towards implementation? Note: There are 3 correct Answers to this question.

- A. A mock-up removes ambiguity and gives further security in terms of feasibility.
- B. A mock-up further unleashes creativity through visualization.
- C. A mock-up transforms user stories into backlog items.
- D. A mock-up prevents non-participants from misinterpreting the results.
- E. A mock-up is a good way to manage "wild ideas" during prototyping.

Answer: A,B,D
