Removing order delete permission from profiles and permission sets is the best approach to ensure that order records cannot be removed from the system in the future. This way, only users with the Modify All Data permission can delete order records. Option A is incorrect, since removing the delete button from the order page layout would not prevent users from deleting order records using other methods, such as data loader or API. Option B is incorrect, since changing the record type/page layout assignment for orders to be read-only would not affect the delete permission, but only the edit permission. Option D is incorrect, since implementing a sharing rule that changes access for the records to read would not prevent users from deleting order records that they own.
