Which table function is used to perform additional processing on the results of a previously-run query?

- A. QUERY_HISTORY_BY_SESSION
- B. DESCRIBE_RESULTS
- C. RESULT_SCAN
- D. QUERY_HISTORY

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 471

What happens when a network policy includes values that appear in both the allowed and blocked IP address list?

- A. Those IP addresses are allowed access to the Snowflake account as Snowflake applies the allowed IP address list first.
- B. Those IP addresses are denied access to the Snowflake account as Snowflake applies the blocked IP address list first.
- C. Snowflake issues an alert message and adds the duplicate IP address values to both the allowed and blocked IP address lists.
- D. Snowflake issues an error message and adds the duplicate IP address values to both the allowed and blocked IP address list.

Answer: B

Explanation:

In Snowflake, when setting up a network policy that specifies both allowed and blocked IP address lists, if an IP address appears in both lists, access from that IP address will be denied. The reason is that Snowflake prioritizes security, and the presence of an IP address in the blocked list indicates it should not be allowed regardless of its presence in the allowed list. This ensures that access controls remain stringent and that any potentially unsafe IP addresses are not inadvertently permitted access.

From what stage can a Snowflake user omit the FROM clause while loading data into a table?

- A. The external named stage
- B. The user stage
- C. The internal named stage
- D. The table stage

Answer: D

Explanation:

In Snowflake, when loading data into a table using the COPY INTO command, the FROM clause can be omitted if loading from the table's stage, also known as the table stage. The table stage is a default location associated with each table where files can be temporarily stored for loading operations. This simplifies the data loading process by allowing direct loading from files that have been uploaded to the table's stage without specifying the stage explicitly in the COPY INTO command.
