NEW QUESTION # 22

What are the differences between a private web browser window and a regular web browser window? (Choose three.)

- A. Private web browser windows do not support logins into websites.
- B. Private web browser windows do not keep records in the browser history.
- C. Private web browser windows do not allow printing or storing websites.
- D. Private web browser windows do not store cookies persistently.
- E. Private web browser windows do not send regular stored cookies.

Answer: B,D,E

Explanation:

Explanation

A private web browser window is a mode of browsing that prevents the browser from saving your browsing history, cookies, and other site data, or information entered in forms. However, it does not prevent websites, your employer or school, or your internet service provider from tracking your online activity. The main differences between a private web browser window and a regular web browser window are:

- * Private web browser windows do not store cookies persistently. Cookies are small files that websites use to store information on your device, such as your preferences, login status, or tracking data. In a regular web browser window, cookies are stored until they expire or you delete them. In a private web browser window, cookies are deleted when you close all private windows.
- * Private web browser windows do not keep records in the browser history. The browser history is a list of
- * web pages that you have visited in the past. In a regular web browser window, the browser history is saved and can be accessed by anyone who uses the same device or profile. In a private web browser window, the browser history is not saved and cannot be viewed by anyone.
- * Private web browser windows do not send regular stored cookies. When you visit a website in a regular web browser window, the browser sends any cookies that are stored for that website. This allows the website to recognize you and provide personalized content or services. When you visit a website in a private web browser window, the browser does not send any cookies that are stored in regular windows.

This prevents the website from identifying you or linking your activity across different sessions.

NEW QUESTION # 23

Which of the following types of bus can connect hard disk drives with the motherboard?

- A. The NUMA bus
- B. The Auto bus
- C. The CPU bus
- D. The SATA bus
- E. The RAM bus

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

A bus is a communication system that transfers data between components inside a computer or between computers. There are different types of buses that serve different purposes. The RAM bus connects the CPU with the main memory, the NUMA bus connects multiple processors in a multiprocessor system, the CPU bus connects the CPU with other components on the motherboard, and the Auto bus is a fictional bus that can transform into a robot. The SATA bus is the correct answer because it is a type of bus that can connect hard disk drives with the motherboard. SATA stands for Serial Advanced Technology Attachment and it is a standard interface for connecting storage devices such as hard disk drives, solid state drives, and optical drives. SATA offers faster data transfer rates, lower power consumption, and improved cable management compared to older interfaces such as IDE and SCSI.
