- A. Competitive opportunities might be missed because of time delays.
- B. Communication is constrained by chain of command.
- C. Different functional departments communicate at a different pace.
- D. Messages are distorted many times by different frames of reference.

正解: C

質問 # 119

A company has entered into a partnership with a key supplier. All other sources for this key component have been eliminated. An auditor reports that the qualifying audit done by the previous auditor contained a significant omission. In this situation, the quality manager should do which of the following first?

- A. Inform the chief executive officer of the omission
- B. Issue a stop-work order to prevent further impact to the organization
- C. Assess the impact of the auditor's omission
- D. Inform the supplier of the problem

正解: C

解説:

When faced with a significant omission in a qualifying audit, the quality manager's initial step should be to evaluate the impact. This assessment involves considering the potential risks, implications for the organization, and the severity of the omission. Once the impact is understood, the manager can make informed decisions about how to proceed. While informing the supplier and the chief executive officer are important steps, they should follow the assessment of the situation.
