Which component is responsible for enforcing protection and checking security posture?

- A. FortiClient EMS
- B. FortiClient
- C. FortiClient EMS tags
- D. FortiClient vulnerability scan

Answer: B

Explanation:

* Evaluating Responsibilities:

* FortiClient performs the actual enforcement of security policies and checks the security posture of the endpoint.

NEW QUESTION # 40

Refer to the exhibit.

You provide a webserver hosting service. An endpoint downloads a test file, testfile.txt, that gets blocked by FortiClient. Which configuration can you use to make the file accessible on the endpoint? (Choose one answer)

- A. Restore access to file directly using FortiClient.
- B. Add the file to the allowlist in quarantine management on FortiClient EMS.
- C. Exclude testfile.txt from the malware protection profile.
- D. Allow the webserver URL in the exclusion list in the web filter profile.

Answer: B

Explanation:

According to the FortiClient EMS 7.2/7.4 Administration Guide (specifically the Quarantine Management and Malware Protection sections), the correct administrative workflow to restore a blocked file and ensure it is no longer flagged as malicious is to use the Quarantine Management feature on the EMS server.

1. Analysis of the Exhibit

* Event Type: The exhibit shows an Antivirus Event where a file named testfile.txt was flagged as Malware: EICAR_TEST_FILE.

* Location: The file was found in a local user directory (C:\Users\administrator\Desktop\Resources\testfile.txt).

* System State: The endpoint is managed by EMS (indicated by the Policy: Default and EMS status icons).

2. Why Option D is the Correct Choice:

* Centralized Control: In a managed environment, the administrator uses the EMS console to oversee security incidents. To restore a file that has been quarantined, the administrator must navigate to Quarantine Management > Files.

* Allowlist & Restore Action: By selecting the specific blocked file (testfile.txt) and clicking Allowlist & Restore, two things happen simultaneously:

* Restoration: EMS sends a command to the FortiClient endpoint to release the file from the local quarantine folder and return it to its original path.

* Allowlisting: The file's hash is added to the Allowlist (managed under Quarantine Management > Allowlist), which prevents FortiClient from re-quarantining the file during future real-time or on-demand scans.

* Accessibility: This is the documented method to make a file "accessible on the endpoint" while ensuring it is not immediately re-blocked by the security engine.

3. Why Other Options are Incorrect:

* A. Restore access directly using FortiClient: While FortiClient has a local quarantine tab, the "Release" button is typically greyed out or restricted when the client is managed by EMS to ensure centralized security policy enforcement.

* B. Allow the webserver URL in the exclusion list: The exhibit shows an Antivirus/Malware event, not a Web Filter event. The file has already been downloaded to the local disk and is being blocked by the Real-Time Protection engine, so a Web Filter URL exclusion would have no effect on the local file block.

* C. Exclude testfile.txt from the malware protection profile: While adding a path exclusion to the Malware Protection profile is a valid way to prevent future scans of a directory, it does not automatically restore a file that has already been moved to quarantine. The proper workflow for an existing block is to use the Quarantine Management tool first.
