IIBA AAC exam is a test of the individual's ability to apply agile analysis techniques to real-world scenarios. IIBA-AAC Exam assesses the individual's knowledge of agile analysis principles, tools, and techniques. It also tests their ability to use agile methodologies to uncover requirements, collaborate with stakeholders, and manage project scope. IIBA Agile Analysis Certification certification is an essential credential for individuals interested in taking on roles such as a business analyst, scrum master or product owner in agile projects. Additionally, the certification is an acknowledgement of the holder's competency and can help them stand out in the job market.

The International Institute of Business Analysis (IIBA) Agile Analysis Certification (AAC) is a certification designed for business analysts who are working in an agile environment. IIBA Agile Analysis Certification certification program is designed to provide the skills and knowledge necessary to work with agile teams and understand the principles of agile development.

IIBA Agile Analysis Certification Sample Questions (Q30-Q35):

NEW QUESTION # 30

The product owner prioritizes backlog items based on business value and also based on:

- A. Updated business plans
- B. Management review of delivered features
- C. What is listed in the specs
- D. What they learn from delivered stories

Answer: D

Explanation:

===== In addition to initial estimates of business value, a Product Owner must prioritize the backlog based on what they learn from delivered stories . Agile delivery is an empirical process where each completed increment provides new data about technical feasibility, user preferences, and business impact.

This continuous learning often reveals that some remaining stories are more important than originally thought, while others may no longer be necessary at all. By incorporating these insights into the prioritization process, the Product Owner ensures that the backlog remains a dynamic and accurate reflection of the most current understanding of value. This responsive prioritization is essential for navigating the uncertainty of complex projects and ensuring that the delivery team is always focused on the work that matters most at that moment.

NEW QUESTION # 31

The following can be described as a critical differentiator for work in an agile context related to backlog refinement:

- A. Team feedback
- B. Using user stories
- C. Stakeholder feedback
- D. Management approval

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 32

When reviewing the initiative, the team has determined that the solution is not delivering the desired outcomes or sufficient value. A viable option to consider is:

- A. Assign to a new team
- B. Cancel the initiative
- C. Restart the work
- D. Release the product

Answer: B

Explanation:

In an agile context, canceling the initiative is a viable and responsible option when analysis shows that the solution is not delivering the desired outcomes or sufficient value . This follows the principle of "Avoiding Waste " by stopping the consumption of resources on a failing project. Rather than succumbing to the "sunk cost fallacy, " an agile organization uses empirical data from the delivery horizon to pivot or stop work. This allows the enterprise to redeploy its people and budget toward other initiatives that have a higher probability of success or value. Determining when a goal cannot be met is a key function of agile analysis, ensuring that the organization remains focused on strategic priorities and maintains the flexibility to respond to new opportunities or threats.

NEW QUESTION # 33

The team establishes ground rules for considering business analysis performance improvements. They agree that speed and accuracy of executing analysis activities becomes very important at the following horizon:

- A. Strategy horizon
- B. Delivery Horizon
- C. Feedback horizon
- D. Initiative horizon

Answer: B

Explanation:

NEW QUESTION # 34

The delivery team is in a meeting and reviewing a visual depicting a two-dimensional grid showing sequence and groupings of key aspects of the overall product. They are discussing notable features and characteristics of that solution. This team is using the following technique:

- A. Backlog management
- B. Retrospectives
- C. Real options
- D. Story mapping

Answer: D

Explanation:

Story Mapping is a visual technique used to arrange user stories into a logical flow, typically along a horizontal axis representing a user's journey and a vertical axis representing the depth or complexity of features. This two-dimensional grid helps the delivery team and stakeholders maintain a "big picture" view of the solution while simultaneously drilling down into specific user activities and goals. By visualizing the sequence and groupings of stories, the team can effectively plan releases and identify the Minimum Viable Product (MVP). This alignment ensures that the product increments delivered are cohesive and provide an end-to-end experience for the user, rather than a disconnected set of features. It directly supports the principle of "Thinking as a Customer" by focusing on the user's workflow.
