What are wide-beam units, primarily used to extend the illumination in long, horizontal strips to protect the approaches to the perimeter barrier?

- A. Perimeter lighting
- B. Floodlights
- C. Search lights
- D. Fresnel Lenses

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 61

The process of finding the person best qualified for the job in terms of both skills and personal integrity is known as:

- A. Inspection
- B. Screening
- C. Vetting
- D. Recruitment

Answer: B

Explanation:
Screening is the process of identifying the most suitable candidates for a job, factoring in both qualifications (skills and experience) and personal integrity. This may involve background checks, interviews, and reference verification to ensure candidates are reliable and trustworthy.
Vetting (C) is often used interchangeably but generally refers more narrowly to background checks.
Recruitment (B) is the broader process of attracting candidates.
Inspection (A) refers to a physical or procedural review, not personnel selection.

NEW QUESTION # 62

The primary advantages of using proprietary security are:

- A. Quality of personnel, administration requirements, and expertise
- B. Quality of personnel, control of forces, loyalty, and prestige
- C. Cost, loyalty, and control of guard forces
- D. Expertise, ability to discipline and reward, and cost

Answer: B

Explanation:
Proprietary (in-house) security often provides better control over personnel, consistency in training, greater loyalty, and better integration with the corporate culture. This can enhance overall performance and organizational prestige.
B, C, and D list some advantages but miss the full combination that best defines proprietary staffing benefits.

NEW QUESTION # 63

A controlled area where an even greater degree of security is required is called:

- A. Limited area
- B. Multiple areas
- C. External area
- D. Pass system area

Answer: A

Explanation:

A limited area is a controlled zone within a facility where a higher level of security is required than in general access areas. These are typically used to protect sensitive operations or assets. Access is restricted to authorized individuals who require entry for specific operational duties.

Pass system area (B) refers to the access control method, not the area classification.

Multiple areas (C) and External area (D) are not specific security designations.
