- * BP: 99/58
- * HR: 148
- * RR: 20
- * T: 102.2°F (39°C)

- C. A head CT
- D. Mannitol (Osmitrol) 2 g/kg

Answer: B

Explanation:

The elevated WBC count, fever, rising airway pressures, and increased secretions are consistent with a developing ventilator-associated pneumonia (VAP). A sputum culture is needed to identify the infectious agent and guide antibiotic therapy.

"Signs of VAP include increased airway secretions, elevated temperature, and rising ventilator pressures.

Diagnostic workup includes obtaining sputum culture to guide treatment." (Referenced from CCRN Pediatric - Direct Care: Pulmonary, Ventilator Complications and Infection)

- D. Place him on side-lying position
