NEW QUESTION # 102

Which three file extensions are allowed in a Lightning Web Component folder?

- A. .jar
- B. .gif
- C. .Js
- D. .js-meta.xml
- E. .html

Answer: C,D,E

Explanation:

In a Lightning Web Component folder, the allowed file extensions include .js-meta.xml for the component's metadata, .html for the component's markup, and .js for the component's JavaScript class. These files are essential for defining the structure, behavior, and metadata of a LWC. Salesforce LWC documentation provides detailed information on the structure of a LWC bundle and the purpose of each file type within it.

NEW QUESTION # 103

A developer needs to implement a business rule around shipping: Anything over a certain amount must be sent through freight at a fixed cost and cannot be sent through standard shipping channels. Which two considerations should the developer consider?

- A. A class will need to implement the `sfdc_commerce.CartShippingCharges` interface
- B. The implementing class may need to contain logical branching
- C. A class will need to implement the `sfdc_checkout.CartShippingCharges` interface
- D. The implementing class cannot call out to another service

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

The correct answer is A and D. To implement a business rule around shipping, the developer will need to create a class that implements the `sfdc_commerce.CartShippingCharges` interface and may need to contain logical branching to handle different scenarios<sup>1</sup>. The `sfdc_commerce.CartShippingCharges` interface is a standard interface that defines the methods for calculating shipping charges for a cart<sup>1</sup>. The developer can use this interface to override the default shipping logic and apply custom rules based on the cart amount or other factors<sup>2</sup>. The developer may also need to use conditional statements or other logic to determine when to use freight shipping or standard shipping<sup>3</sup>.

The implementing class cannot call out to another service and a class will need to implement the `sfdc_checkout.CartShippingCharges` interface are not the correct answers. The implementing class can call out to another service if needed, such as an external shipping service or a pricing engine<sup>2</sup>. The `sfdc_checkout.CartShippingCharges` interface is a deprecated interface that was used for calculating shipping charges for a cart only<sup>1</sup>. It has been replaced by the `sfdc_commerce.CartShippingCharges` interface, which supports both carts and orders<sup>1</sup>. Reference:

NEW QUESTION # 104

A developer attempts to export data from an org by launching Data Loader, selecting a standard entity, clicking the "Select All Fields" button and clicking the Finish button. The developer finds that the `CustomField__c` field they added to the entity has no values under the header in the CSV file output. What is the root cause?

- A. The field is not populated
- B. The developer does not have access to the object's metadata
- C. The developer does not have the correct JDK that is recommended by Salesforce and this is known to cause issues with exporting custom attributes
- D. The user does not have rights to the custom field

Answer: D

Explanation:

The root cause of why the `CustomField__c` field they added to the entity has no values under the header in the CSV file output is that the user does not have rights to the custom field. A user's access to a field is determined by their profile and permission sets, which define their field-level security settings. Field-level security settings control whether a user can see, edit, or delete the value for a particular field on an object. If a user does not have access to a field, they will not be able to view or modify its value in any interface, including Data Loader. Data Loader is a tool that allows users to import or export data between Salesforce and CSV files. When using Data Loader to export data from an org, Data Loader will only include fields that are accessible to the user based on their field-level security settings. If a user does not have access to a field, Data Loader will not include that field in the CSV file, neither as a column header nor as a value. The developer does not have the correct JDK that is recommended by Salesforce and this is known to cause issues with exporting custom attributes is not the root cause of why `CustomField__c` has no values under the header in the CSV file output, as it is not related to field access or Data Loader functionality. The developer does not have access to the object's metadata is not the root cause either, as it is not related to field access or Data Loader functionality. The object's metadata defines its structure and properties, such as fields, relationships, and layouts. The field is not populated is not the root cause either, as it contradicts the fact that CustomField__c has no column header in the CSV file output. If the field was not populated but accessible to the user, Data Loader would still include CustomField__c as a column header in the CSV file, but leave its values blank. ### NEW QUESTION # 105

What two things happen with the Cart during tax implementation?

- A. Previous entries are copied to another object
- B. Previous entries are deleted from the Cart
- C. New entries are written to the Cart
- D. New entries are written to the Order Summary

Answer: B,C

Explanation:

Two things that happen with the cart during tax implementation are that new entries are written to the cart and previous entries are deleted from the cart. A tax implementation is an integration that calculates and applies tax rates and amounts to a cart or an order based on various factors, such as product type, price, quantity, location, and tax rules. A tax implementation can use either an external tax service provider or custom Apex code to perform the tax calculation. When a tax implementation is invoked for a cart, it writes new entries to the cart with a type of Charge and a charge type of Tax. These entries represent the tax amounts and adjustments that are applied to the cart. Before writing new entries to the cart, the tax implementation deletes any existing entries with a type of Charge and a charge type of Tax from the cart. This ensures that the tax calculation is accurate and up-to-date based on the current state of the cart and avoids any conflicts or inconsistencies with previous tax entries. Previous entries are not copied to another object or modified with the new tax calculation, as these are not valid actions for handling existing tax entries. ### NEW QUESTION # 106

A developer has written the logic to import products from an enterprise resource pi products are in Salesforce, but they are not visible in the store.

What did the developer forget to assign to the imported products?

- A. Account
- B. Storefront
- C. Entitlement policy
- D. Promotion

Answer: B

Explanation:

:A developer has written the logic to import products from an enterprise resource planning (ERP) platform into B2B storefront products. The imported products are in Salesforce, but they are not visible in the store. The developer forgot to assign the storefront to the imported products. A storefront is a logical grouping of products, categories, and price books that defines what products are available for purchase in a B2B Commerce site<sup>1</sup>. A product must be associated with at least one storefront to be visible in the store<sup>2</sup>. The developer can use the Data Loader to insert or update the storefront assignments for the imported products<sup>3</sup>. Option A, Option C, and Option D are incorrect because they are not required for the products to be visible in the store. An entitlement policy is a set of rules that determines the availability of products based on the buyer's account, contract, or order history<sup>4</sup>. An account is a record that represents a business or person involved in a business transaction. A promotion is a marketing tool that offers discounts or incentives to buyers. These are optional features that can be used to customize the B2B Commerce experience, but they are not necessary for the products to be visible in the store. Reference:
