- C. Uninstall unnecessary applications and services.
- D. Evaluate server configuration periodically.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 1021
During a human resources (HR) audit, an IS auditor is informed that there is a verbal agreement between the IT and HR departments as to the level of IT services expected. In this situation, what should the IS auditor do FIRST?

- A. Draft a service level agreement (SLA) for the two departments
- B. Confirm the content of the agreement with both departments
- C. Postpone the audit until the agreement is documented
- D. Report the existence of the undocumented agreement to senior management

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation:
An IS auditor should first confirm and understand the current practice before making any recommendations. The agreement can be documented after it has been established that there is an agreement in place. The fact that there is not a written agreement does not justify postponing the audit, and reporting to senior management is not necessary at this stage of the audit. Drafting a service level agreement (SLA) is not the IS auditor's responsibility.

NEW QUESTION # 1022
Which of the following BEST describes the relationship between vulnerability scanning and penetration testing?

- A. Both are labor-intensive in preparation, planning and execution.
- B. Both utilize a risk-based analysis that considers threat scenarios.
- C. The scope of both is determined primarily by the likelihood of exploitation
- D. For entities with regulatory drivers, the two tests must be the same

Answer: B
