- A. Idempotence sends an update multiple times and only keeps the latest update EOS requests get sent multiple times, but only the first request is accepted.
- B. Idempotence sends updates multiple times and stores the first value. EOS sends updates multiple times and stores the latest value.
- C. Idempotence Is any function that can be executed several times without changing the final result beyond its first iteration. EOS sends an update once and only one time.
- D. Idempotence sends an update once and only one item. EOS is any function that can be executed several times without changing the final result beyond its first iteration

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 78

To enhance compression, I can increase the chances of batching by using

- A. acks=all
- B. batch.size=65536
- C. linger.ms=20
- D. max.message.size=10MB

Answer: C

Explanation:

linger.ms forces the producer to wait before sending messages, hence increasing the chance of creating batches that can be heavily compressed.

NEW QUESTION # 79

The producer code below features a Callback class with a method called onCompletion().

In the onCompletion() method, when the request is completed successfully, what does the value metadata.offset() represent?

- A. The ID of the partition to which the message was committed
- B. The sequential ID of the message committed into a partition
- C. Its position in the producer's batch of messages
- D. The number of bytes that overflowed beyond a producer batch of messages

Answer: B

Explanation:

The offset in the RecordMetadata object returned by the producer represents the position of the record in the partition- i.e., the sequential ID assigned by Kafka once the message is committed.

From Kafka Producer API Documentation:

"The offset is the position of the record in the partition. This is a unique, sequential number assigned by the broker."

* D refers to metadata.partition(), not offset().

* B and C are unrelated to how Kafka handles committed offsets.
