NEW QUESTION # 124

An employee requires a workstation with three high-end graphics cards to render 3-D models. A technician must choose a power supply that meets the power requirements for the components and takes into consideration the mission-critical nature of the work. Which of the following meet the requirements? (Select two).

- A. 20-pin motherboard connector
- B. 240 VAC input

- C. Redundancy
- D. Modularity
- E. 3.3V output
- F. 12V output

Answer: C,D

Explanation:
A workstation running three high-end GPUs requires a power supply capable of both high wattage and stable, reliable output. In CompTIA A+ power supply fundamentals, modularity and redundancy are emphasized for high-performance and mission-critical systems.
Modularity (B) allows the technician to connect only the necessary cables, reducing clutter, improving airflow, and enabling proper cable routing to multiple GPUs. High-end graphics cards require multiple PCIe connectors, and modular PSUs provide the flexibility to attach the exact number of required GPU power cables. This is important for systems where space management and cooling efficiency directly affect performance and component longevity.
Redundancy (D) is critical for mission-critical workstations used for 3-D modeling and rendering. A redundant power supply ensures that if one PSU module fails, the system continues running without interruption. CompTIA A+ highlights redundancy as a key feature in professional environments where uptime is essential. These systems typically use dual hot-swappable power modules to guarantee continuous power delivery.
The other options do not meaningfully address the requirements. A 12V output is standard on all PSUs. A 20- pin connector is outdated; modern motherboards use 24-pin. The 3.3V rail is not relevant to GPU loads, and 240 VAC input only refers to wall power compatibility, not PSU capability. Therefore, modularity and redundancy best meet the workstation's needs.

NEW QUESTION # 125
Which of the following tools would a technician use to connect wires to an RJ45 connector?

- A. Loopback plug
- B. Crimper
- C. Cable stripper
- D. Punchdown

Answer: B

Explanation:
A crimper is specifically used to attach RJ45 connectors to the ends of network cables. It pressesthe connector pins into the cable's wires, establishing a secure electrical connection. A punchdown tool is used for wiring patch panels or keystone jacks, not for attaching connectors.

NEW QUESTION # 126
A company wants to have fast read speeds for its locally stored dat
a. Which of the following configurations has the lowest cost to fulfill this requirement?

- A. RAID 0
- B. RAID 5
- C. RAID 10
- D. RAID 1

Answer: A

Explanation:
RAID 0 (striping) provides the fastest read (and write) speeds at the lowest cost, as all disk capacity is used for storage and performance. However, it offers no redundancy.
