Cisco Certified Support Technician (CCST) Cybersecurity Sample Questions (Q183-Q188):

NEW QUESTION # 183

When ranking risks, which of the following factors should be considered?

- A. The likelihood of a risk occurring.
- B. The potential impact or consequences of a risk.
- C. All of the above.
- D. The cost associated with mitigating a risk.

Answer: C

Explanation:

When ranking risks, it is important to consider multiple factors including the likelihood of a risk occurring, the potential impact or consequences of the risk, and the cost associated with mitigating the risk. Considering all these factors together helps prioritize the risks and allocate appropriate resources for risk management.

NEW QUESTION # 184

Why is it important to stay current with automated threat intelligence technologies?

- A. To enhance the effectiveness of security measures
- B. To leverage the latest advancements in machine learning and AI
- C. All of the above
- D. To adapt to evolving cybersecurity threats

Answer: C

Explanation:

Staying current with automated threat intelligence technologies is vital in the field of cybersecurity. Firstly, as cyber threats continuously evolve, staying up to date allows organizations to adapt their defenses and countermeasures accordingly. Secondly, leveraging the latest advancements in machine learning and artificial intelligence helps improve the accuracy and efficiency of threat detection and response. Lastly, by staying current, organizations can enhance the overall effectiveness of their security measures and stay ahead of potential threats.

NEW QUESTION # 185

Which of the following is a common vulnerability management practice?

- A. Installing antivirus software on all company devices.
- B. Encrypting all data at rest in a database.

- C. Restricting network access based on IP addresses.
- D. Regularly patching software and operating systems.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Regularly patching software and operating systems is a common practice in vulnerability management. Software and operating system vendors release security patches and updates to address known vulnerabilities. By regularly applying these patches, organizations can mitigate the risk of exploitation. Failure to patch systems in a timely manner can leave them vulnerable to attacks that exploit known vulnerabilities.

NEW QUESTION # 186

Which level of risk category would be associated with a vulnerability that has the potential to cause minor financial loss or impact?

- A. Medium risk
- B. Extremely high risk
- C. High risk
- D. Low risk

Answer: D

Explanation:

A vulnerability that has the potential to cause minor financial loss or impact would be categorized as a low-risk level. Low-risk vulnerabilities pose a relatively smaller threat to an organization's assets, systems, or data. While they should not be ignored, low-risk vulnerabilities typically require less immediate attention and resources to mitigate.

NEW QUESTION # 187

Which of the following is an example of a corrective control?

- A. Antivirus software
- B. Backup and recovery
- C. Intrusion prevention system
- D. User awareness training

Answer: B

Explanation:

Backup and recovery is a corrective control that enables organizations to restore systems, data, and services after an incident or a failure. It helps to recover from various incidents such as data loss, hardware failure, or a security breach, restoring operations to a functional state.
