Questions (Q183-Q188):

NEW QUESTION # 183

Salesforce B2B Commerce natively provides a robots.txt file, however, a customer can also create its own version. Which three scenarios are valid reasons for customer to create their own robots.txt file? (3 answers)

- A. The customer's store is not located at the root of their domain.
- B. The customer wants to have multiple robot.txt files in a single Salesforce Community.
- C. robot.txt only works if there is one storefront in the org
- D. The customer wants to reference multiple storefront sitemap indexes in a single robots.txt file
- E. The customer wants to reference a custom sitemap index.

Answer: A,D,E

Explanation:

A customer can create its own robots.txt file for three valid reasons:

The customer wants to reference multiple storefront sitemap indexes in a single robots.txt file. This can be useful if the customer has multiple storefronts under the same domain and wants to provide a single entry point for search engines to crawl their sitemaps.

The customer wants to reference a custom sitemap index. This can be useful if the customer has created their own sitemap index that contains custom sitemaps or sitemaps from other sources.

The customer's store is not located at the root of their domain. This can be useful if the customer has their store under a subdirectory or a subdomain and wants to specify a different robots.txt file for their store than for their main domain. ### NEW QUESTION # 184

What happens to all previous tax entries during tax implementation?

- A. Saved prior to recalculation
- B. Ignored with the recalculation
- C. Modified with the new Tax calculation
- D. They are deleted from the Cart

Answer: A

Explanation:

In general best practices for tax implementation in systems like Salesforce B2B Commerce, previous tax entries are usually preserved or saved before any recalculation is performed. This ensures that there is a record of the original tax calculations before any modifications, which can be crucial for auditing, historical data integrity, and in case the new tax calculation needs to be rolled back for any reason.

NEW QUESTION # 185

What tool can a developer use to investigate errors during development? 07m 42s

- A. Streaming API Subscription Channel for Commerce Diagnostics Event Logging
- B. Custom Log Levels
- C. Commerce Diagnostics Event Logging JavaScript Console
- D. Lightning Web Component for Commerce Diagnostics Event Logging

Answer: A

Explanation:

For investigating errors during development, Salesforce recommends using the Streaming API Subscription Channel for Commerce Diagnostics Event Logging. This tool allows developers to subscribe to a real-time feed of system events, including errors, which can be crucial for diagnosing and resolving issues during development. The Streaming API provides a robust mechanism for monitoring and debugging by delivering secure, scalable, and customizable event notifications within Salesforce or through external systems. This is outlined in Salesforce documentation related to the Streaming API and its application in commerce diagnostics and event logging.

NEW QUESTION # 186

A developer needs to bulk export all of the Product data from an org and does not have access to Data Loader or Workbench. However, the Command Line Interface (CLI) is available. Which command allows the developer to accomplish this task?

- A. `sfdx force:data:tree:export -o Product?`
- B. `sfdx force:data:tree:export -Product2 -all`
- C. `sfdx force:data:tree:export -q <path to file containing soql query> -x export-demo -d /tmp/sfdx-out -p`
- D. `sfdx force:data:tree:export -h`

Answer: C

Explanation:

The Salesforce CLI command `sfdx force:data:tree:export` is used to export data from an org into one or more JSON files<sup>1</sup>. The `-q` flag is used to specify the path to a file containing a SOQL query, `-x` is used to specify the name of the exported file, `-d` is used to specify the directory where the exported file will be saved, and `-p` is used to indicate that all records returned by the SOQL query should be exported<sup>2</sup>. This command allows developers to bulk export data from an org without needing access to Data Loader or Workbench<sup>1,2</sup>. Therefore, option C is the correct answer. Please note that the actual SOQL query and the directory path would need to be replaced with the appropriate values for the specific use case.

NEW QUESTION # 187

Universal Containers (UC) needs to wrap a Lightning Web Component they have created called "lwcContainerComponent" inside an Aura component. Which set of tags is the correct approach?

- A. ☐
- B. ☐
- C. ☐
- D. ☒

Answer: D

Explanation:

To wrap a Lightning Web Component inside an Aura component, you need to use the `<c:lwcContainerComponent>` tag, where `c` is the default namespace for custom components. This tag allows you to reference the Lightning Web Component by its name and use it as a child component of the Aura component. You also need to use the `lwc:dom="manual"` directive on the Aura component to indicate that you are manually rendering the Lightning Web Component inside the Aura component. This directive prevents the Aura component from interfering with the rendering of the Lightning Web Component. Option C shows the correct syntax for wrapping a Lightning Web Component inside an Aura component. Option A is incorrect because it uses the `<lightning:lwcContainerComponent>` tag, which is not a valid tag for referencing a Lightning Web Component. Option B is incorrect because it uses the `<aura:lwcContainerComponent>` tag, which is also not a valid tag for referencing a Lightning Web Component. Option D is incorrect because it does not use the `lwc:dom="manual"` directive on the Aura component, which is required for manually rendering a Lightning Web Component inside an Aura component.
