IAPP Certified Information Privacy Professional/United States (CIPP/US) Sample Questions (Q214-Q219):

NEW QUESTION # 214

One of the most significant elements of Senate Bill No. 260 relating to Internet privacy is the introduction of what term into Nevada law?

- A. Data Brokers
- B. Artificial Intelligence.
- C. Transfer Mechanism
- D. Data Ethics

Answer: A

Explanation:

One of the most significant changes introduced by Nevada Senate Bill 260 (SB 260) is the inclusion of the term "Data Brokers" into Nevada privacy law. The bill requires data brokers to register with the Nevada Secretary of State and comply with new privacy requirements, such as responding to consumer opt-out requests. This addition aligns Nevada's privacy framework more closely with laws like Vermont's data broker law.

Key Provisions of SB 260:

Definition of Data Brokers:

A data broker is defined as a company that collects, sells, or licenses consumer data and does not have a direct relationship with the consumer.

Registration Requirements:

Data brokers must register annually with the Nevada Secretary of State.

Consumer Rights:

Consumers are granted the right to opt out of the sale of their personal information, extending the scope of Nevada's existing privacy law.

NEW QUESTION # 215

If an organization maintains data classified as high sensitivity in the same system as data classified as low sensitivity, which of the following is the most likely outcome?

- A. The organization will be able to address legal discovery requests efficiently without producing more information than necessary.
- B. The impact of an organizational data breach will be more severe than if the data had been segregated.
- C. The organization will still be in compliance with most sector-specific privacy and security laws.
- D. Temporary employees will be able to find the data necessary to fulfill their responsibilities.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Data classification is the process of categorizing data based on its sensitivity and importance to determine its level of confidentiality and protection. Data classification helps organizations apply appropriate security and compliance measures to ensure each category receives proper protection. Data classification also helps organizations identify which data is subject to specific privacy laws and regulations, such as the GDPR, HIPAA, or CCPA, and how to handle data subject requests, data breaches, or legal discovery. If an organization maintains data classified as high sensitivity, such as personal information, financial information, or health information, in the same system as data classified as low sensitivity, such as public information or internal information, it increases the risk of exposing the high sensitivity data in the event of a data breach. A data breach can result in legal consequences, reputational damage, and loss of trust from customers and stakeholders. Therefore, it is advisable to segregate data based on its classification and apply different levels of encryption, access control, and monitoring to each category. This way, the organization can minimize the impact of a data breach and protect the privacy and security of its data assets.

NEW QUESTION # 216

Under the EU-US Data Privacy Framework, what must participating organizations provide to individuals in regard to complaints and disputes?

- A. A means of communicating with the organization's privacy team.
- B. A copy of the individual's personal data
- C. A description of the organization's data processing policies
- D. An independent recourse mechanism.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Under the EU-US Data Privacy Framework (DPF), organizations that participate in the framework must provide individuals with a way to resolve complaints and disputes about how their personal data is handled. Specifically, organizations are required to offer an independent recourse mechanism to ensure compliance with the principles of the framework. This mechanism enables individuals to bring their complaints forward and have them addressed through an impartial and accessible process.

The independent recourse mechanism is critical to the DPF as it reinforces accountability and builds trust in cross-border data transfers. Organizations must select a third-party dispute resolution provider (such as an alternative dispute resolution body or a regulatory body) and disclose this mechanism in their privacy policies. The mechanism must be provided free of charge to the individual.

NEW QUESTION # 217

One of Don's concerns is the easy access to pornography on the internet today. He does not want his children viewing pornography either purposely or accidentally. Which statement is TRUE regarding protecting children from pornography?

- A. Don can prevent his children from watching pornography by controlling what apps they install.
- B. COPPA will prevent web sites from displaying pornography to children.
- C. Don can discourage his children from viewing pornography by understanding and using parental controls on all their devices.
- D. COPPA will prevent a child from lying about their age to view adult content.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The best way to prevent children from viewing porn is to talk with the children about what is allowable and what is harmful and using parental controls to block adult websites along with steaming content and games based on their ratings.

NEW QUESTION # 218

A company's employee wellness portal offers an app to track exercise activity via users' mobile devices. Which of the following design techniques would most effectively inform users of their data privacy rights and privileges when using the app?

- A. Offer information about data collection and uses at key data entry points.
- B. Provide a link to the wellness program privacy policy at the bottom of each screen.
- C. Publish a privacy policy written in clear, concise, and understandable language.
- D. Present a privacy policy to users during the wellness program registration process.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The design technique that would most effectively inform users of their data privacy rights and privileges when using the app is to offer information about data collection and uses at key data entry points. This technique is also known as "just-in-time" or "layered" notice, and it is recommended by the U.S. Federal Trade Commission (FTC) as a best practice for mobile app developers. The idea behind this technique is to provide users with relevant and timely information about how their data is collected and used by the app, and what choices they have to control their data, at the moment when they are asked to provide or access their data. For example, if the app collects location data from the user's device, it should display a pop-up notice explaining why it needs the location data, how it will use it, and how the user can opt-out or change the settings. This way, the user can make an informed decision about whether to allow or deny the app's access to their data, and understand the consequences of their choice.

The advantage of this technique is that it avoids overwhelming the user with too much information at once, and instead provides concise and contextual information that is easy to understand and act upon. It also increases the user's trust and confidence in the app, as they feel more in control of their data and privacy
