NEW QUESTION # 59

For an SMB, which Cisco products are essential for ensuring application performance? (Choose three)

- A. Cisco Catalyst
- B. Cisco HyperFlex
- C. Cisco Talos
- D. Cisco Nexus
- E. Cisco AppDynamics

Answer: A,B,E

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed In-Depth Explanation: Ensuring application performance is critical for SMBs to maintain productivity and customer satisfaction, and Cisco offers several products tailored to this need:

- * A. Cisco AppDynamics: This application performance monitoring (APM) tool provides real-time visibility into application behavior, identifying bottlenecks and optimizing performance across cloud, hybrid, or on-premises environments. For SMBs, its insights into user experience and app health are essential, especially for business-critical apps like e-commerce platforms or collaboration tools.
- * B. Cisco Catalyst: The Catalyst series (e.g., Catalyst 9000 switches) enhances network performance, which directly impacts application delivery. Features like Quality of Service (QoS) and SD-WAN capabilities ensure applications run smoothly by prioritizing traffic and reducing latency, a must for SMBs with limited bandwidth.
- * C. Cisco HyperFlex: This hyperconverged infrastructure solution combines compute, storage, and networking to support applications with high performance and scalability. For SMBs running virtualized apps or needing simplified IT, HyperFlex ensures consistent performance, as seen in deployments for retail or healthcare SMBs.
- * D. Cisco Talos: Talos is Cisco's threat intelligence organization, not a product for application performance. It supports security, not direct app optimization.
- * E. Cisco Nexus: While Nexus switches excel in data center performance, they're overkill for most SMBs, which typically don't operate large-scale data centers and focus on simpler networking needs met by Catalyst.

A, B, and C are the most relevant Cisco products for SMBs to ensure application performance across monitoring, networking, and infrastructure.
