Cloudera CDP Data Engineer - Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q36-Q41):

NEW QUESTION # 36

What command and parameters should be used to update an existing Spark job in the Cloudera Data Engineering (CDE) service to increase its executor memory using the CDE CLI?

- A. `cde job update -name my-spark-job --conf spark.executor.memory=6g`
- B. `cde spark submit -update -name my-spark-job -executor-memory 6G`
- C. `cde job run -edit my-spark-job -conf spark.executor.memory=6g`
- D. `cde job config -name my-spark-job -set spark.executor.memory=6g`

Answer: A

Explanation:

To update an existing Spark job in the Cloudera Data Engineering (CDE) service to increase its executor memory, the correct command is `cde job update` followed by the `--name` parameter to specify the job and the `--conf` flag to set the new configuration for spark.executor.memory. This command allows you to modify the job's configuration parameters directly via the CDE CLI, enabling adjustments to resource allocations such as executor memory.

NEW QUESTION # 37

When performing a bucketed join between two tables, what must be true for the join to be executed as a map-side join, thereby maximizing performance?

- A. Both tables must be bucketed on the join columns with the same number of buckets and the same hash function.
- B. Only one table needs to be bucketed, regardless of the bucket count.
- C. Both tables must be bucketed on the join columns with a different number of buckets.
- D. Both tables must be partitioned, not bucketed, on the join columns.

Answer: A

Explanation:

For a join to be executed as a map-side join when using bucketed tables, both tables must be bucketed on the join columns with the same number of buckets and use the same hash function. This ensures that the data is distributed in a way that corresponding buckets from each table contain joinable data, allowing Hive to perform the join directly on the map side without shuffling data, which significantly improves performance by reducing network I/O and processing time.

NEW QUESTION # 38

You need to create a new Hive table from a Spark DataFrame. What are the different approaches you can consider?

- A. All of the above
- B. Convert the DataFrame to a temporary table and then use HiveQL commands to create a permanent table
- C. Directly write the DataFrame to a directory in HDFS and define a corresponding Hive table schema
- D. Use the DataFrame.write.saveAsTable("table_name") method with appropriate options

Answer: A

Explanation:

While each option offers a way to create a Hive table from a Spark DataFrame, they provide different levels of control and convenience. Option A requires manual schema definition, while B offers a concise approach with configuration options. Option C might be useful for specific scenarios, but B is generally preferred.

NEW QUESTION # 39

What Airflow feature allows you to template parts of your DAG to dynamically change based on the execution context?

- A. BranchOperator
- B. Jinja Templating
- C. PythonOperator
- D. XComs

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 40

In the context of Airflow, what is the purpose of the "XCom" feature?

- A. To trigger external systems when a DAG reaches a specific state.
- B. To enable communication between different tasks within the same DAG.
- C. To manage dependencies and package installations across tasks.
- D. To execute commands across different operating systems.

Answer: B

Explanation:

"XCom" stands for "cross-communication," and it is a feature in Airflow designed to enable tasks within the same DAG to share data or messages. It allows for a lightweight way to pass small amounts of data between tasks, facilitating more complex workflows and data processing pipelines.
