NEW QUESTION # 623

After a new network printer is installed and added to the print server, users are unable to install the printer. However, the technician is able to install the printer when logged in to a user's computer as an administrator. Which of the following is the best option to allow all users to print to the new printer?

- A. Give all users temporary administrator rights to install the new printer.
- B. Remotely log in to all users' computers and install the printer.
- C. Install all applicable print drivers on the print server.
- D. Map the users to a print share for driver installation.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The best option to allow all users to print to the new network printer is to install all applicable print drivers on the print server. This way, the print server can automatically provide the correct driver to the client computers when they connect to the printer. This option also reduces the administrative overhead and security risks of the other options, which involve either granting users more privileges, mapping them to a shared folder, or remotely accessing their computers.

NEW QUESTION # 624

Which of the following technologies can be used to connect a home PC to a company's network?

- A. VoIP
- B. VPN
- C. VM
- D. VLAN

Answer: B

Explanation:

A VPN (Virtual Private Network) is the technology that allows a home PC to connect securely to a company's network over the internet. It extends a private network across a public network, enabling users to send and receive data as if their computing devices were directly connected to the private network. This makes VPNs ideal for remote work and accessing company resources securely from a home PC.

NEW QUESTION # 625

A field technician is responding to a ticket about an animated sign with double images. One image is stationary, and the other image is live. Which of the following is the cause of the issue?

- A. Bad display cable
- B. Burned out bulbs
- C. Display burn-in
- D. Incorrect color settings

Answer: C

Explanation:

Display burn-in occurs when a static image is left on a screen for a long time, causing the pixels to wear out unevenly and retain a ghost image even when new content is displayed. This issue can result in double images, where the "burned-in" stationary image persists alongside new, live content. This problem is more common in older displays or those used for static signage. Replacing the display cable or adjusting color settings would not address the underlying cause of uneven pixel wear, and burned-out bulbs would likely result in a loss of image clarity or brightness, not double images.

References: Display burn-in is a well-documented phenomenon in display technology, particularly affecting screens used for signage with static elements.

NEW QUESTION # 626

A network administrator was notified that laptop users are unable to access or ping any network resources on the corporate network. Which of the following should the network administrator check FIRST?

- A. ARP
- B. DNS
- C. DHCP
- D. AAA

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

Domain Name System (DNS) is an Internet service that translates domain names (e.g., its.umich.edu) into IP addresses. Dynamic Host Configuration Protocol (DHCP) is a protocol for automatically assigning IP addresses and other configurations to devices when they connect to a network.
