An advantage of calculating a Kuder-Richardson reliability coefficient for a test is that it

- A. is a variance-free estimate of reliability.
- B. is accurate irrespective of test length.
- C. can be based on only one administration of the test.

Answer: C

Explanation:

A major advantage of the Kuder-Richardson reliability coefficient (such as KR-20) is that it requires only a single test administration, since it is based on internal consistency of test items. This makes it more practical than methods that require multiple administrations. Reference: Helwig, A. A. (2020). CPCE Study Guide and Review; Cohen, R. J., & Swerdlik, M. E. (2018). What is the function of mirror neurons during infancy?

- A. to release growth hormones and enhance the infant's physical and motor skill development
- B. to enhance the infant's ability to think and pay attention
- C. to imitate the behaviors that infants see and observe in others

Answer: C

Explanation:

Mirror neurons are specialized brain cells that activate both when an individual performs an action and when they observe the same action performed by someone else. In infancy, mirror neurons are crucial for imitation, allowing infants to learn new behaviors and skills by watching others. This process is foundational to social learning and the development of communication and empathy.
