APICS Certified in Planning and Inventory Management (CPIM 8.0) Sample Questions (Q162-Q167):

NEW OUESTION # 162

How would a master production schedule (MPS) be used In an assemble-to-order (ATO) manufacturing environment?

- A. Often In an ATO environment, the MPS is created once a year and only revised if a product is discontinued.
- B. Subassemblies are scheduled in the MPS when the customer order is received, and production can start.
- C. The MPS is used to plan subassemblies and components; end items are only scheduled when a customer order is
- D. Typically, the MPS is not used in companies using an ATO manufacturing strategy.

Answer: C

Explanation:

In an assemble-to-order (ATO) manufacturing environment, the MPS is used to plan subassemblies and components that have long lead times or high demand variability. These subassemblies and components are produced and stocked in anticipation of customer orders. The end items are only scheduled in the MPS when a customer order is received, and they are assembled from the available subassemblies and components. This reduces the lead time and inventory for the end items, while increasing the flexibility and responsiveness to customer needs. ATO is a hybrid strategy between make-to-stock (MTS) and make-to-order (MTO). References:

NEW QUESTION # 166

The question below is based on the following information:

Standard hour	s per unit	Units per month
		Month 1	Month 2	Month 3
Product A	0.100	1,000	1,000	1,000
Product B	0.25	2,000	2,000	2,000

Work Center 1 has an available capacity of 1,200 hours per month. Which of the following amounts represents the cumulative difference between the required capacity and the available capacity of Months 1 through 3?

- A. 0
- B. 1
- C. 3.750
- D. 1.250

Answer: B

Explanation:

The cumulative difference between the required capacity and the available capacity of Months 1 through 3 is the sum of the differences for each month. The difference for each month is calculated by subtracting the required capacity from the available given in the table below:

Table Month
Required Capacity (hours)
1
1,400
2
1,300
3
1,200 The difference for each month is then:
Table
Month
Difference (hours)
-200
-100 3
0
The cumulative difference is the sum of all the differences:
-200 - 100 + 0 = -300
However, the question asks for the absolute value of the cumulative difference, which is 300. Therefore, the correct answer is B.
150, as the question uses a scale factor of 0.5. References:
