global List<List<Recommendation>> getLevel(List<ContactWrapper> input) { /implementation/ }

@InvocableMethod
global static ListRecommendation getLevel(List<ContactWrapper> input) { /implementation/ }

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 28

How does the Lightning Component framework help developers implement solutions faster?

- A. By providing device-awareness for mobile and desktops
- B. By providing change history and version control
- C. By providing an Agile process with default steps
- D. By providing code review standards and processes

Answer: A

Explanation:

* By providing device-awareness for mobile and desktops. This is true because the Lightning Component framework is a UI framework for developing Lightning components for mobile and desktop devices.

Lightning web components and Aura components can coexist and interoperate on a page. The framework takes care of rendering the components appropriately for different devices and screen sizes1.

* By providing an Agile process with default steps. This is false because the Lightning Component framework does not provide any specific process or methodology for developing solutions. Developers can use any process that suits their needs, such as Agile, Waterfall, or Scrum2.

* By providing code review standards and processes. This is false because the Lightning Component framework does not provide any code review standards or processes. Developers are responsible for ensuring the quality and maintainability of their code, and they can use tools such as code analysis, testing, and debugging to help them3.

* By providing change history and version control. This is false because the Lightning Component framework does not provide any change history or version control features. Developers can use tools such as Git, SVN, or Salesforce DX to manage their source code and track changes.

NEW QUESTION # 29

The following code snippet is executed by a Lightning web component in an environment with more than 2,000 lead records:

@AuraEnabled
public void static updateLeads() { for(Lead thisLead : [SELECT Origin__c FROM Lead]) {
        thisLead.LeadSource = thisLead.Origin__c;
        update thisLead;
    }

Which governor limit will likely be exceeded within the Apex transaction?

- A. Total number of records retrieved by SOQL queries
- B. Total number of DML statements issued
- C. Total number of SOQL queries issued
- D. Total number of records processed as a result of DML statements

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 30

The Account object in an organization has a master-detail relationship to a child object called Branch. The following automations exist:

Roll-up summary fields

Custom validation rules

Duplicate rules

developer created a trigger on the Account object.

Which two things should the developer consider while testing the trigger code?

Choose 2 answers

- A. The trigger may fire multiple times during a transaction.
- B. Rollup summary fields can cause the parent record to go through Save.
- C. Duplicate rules are executed once all DML operations commit to the database.
- D. The validation rules will cause the trigger to fire again,

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

Option A: Roll-up summary fields can cause the parent record to go through Save.

True.

When a child record changes, roll-up summary fields on the parent object are recalculated.

This causes the parent record to save, which can trigger triggers on the parent object.

Reference:

Option D: The trigger may fire multiple times during a transaction.

True.

Triggers can fire multiple times due to workflow updates, process builders, or roll-up summary field recalculations.

Developers should design triggers to handle potential recursion and multiple executions.

Option B: The validation rules will cause the trigger to fire again.

False.

Validation rules execute after triggers and do not cause triggers to fire again.

They validate the data before the final commit but do not initiate additional trigger executions.

Option C: Duplicate rules are executed once all DML operations commit to the database.

False.

Duplicate rules are evaluated after triggers but before the DML operations are committed.

They can prevent records from being saved but do not affect trigger execution after commit.

Conclusion:

The developer should consider options A and D while testing the trigger code, as they can impact trigger execution during transactions.

NEW QUESTION # 31

A developer must create a DrawList class that provides capabilities defined in the Sortable and Drawable interfaces. public interface Sortable { void sort(); } public interface Drawable { void draw(); } Which is the correct implementation?

- A. Public class DrawList extends Sortable, extends Sortable, extends Drawable { public void sort() { /implementation/ } public void draw() { /* implementation */ }
- B. Public class DrawList extends Sortable, Drawable { public void sort() { /implementation/ } public void draw() { /implementation/ } }
- C. Public class DrawList implements Sortable, Implements Drawable { public void sort() { /implementation/ } public void draw() { /implementation/ } }
- D. Public class DrawList implements Sortable, Drawable { public void sort() { /implementation/ } public void draw() { /implementation/ } }

Answer: D

Explanation:

To create a class that provides the capabilities defined by multiple interfaces, the class must use the implements keyword followed by a comma-separated list of the interface names. The class must also provide the implementation for all the methods declared in the interfaces. The extends keyword is used for inheritance, not for implementing interfaces. Therefore, option C is the correct implementation of the DrawList class that implements both the Sortable and Drawable interfaces.
