* Strategic Factor Weighting: Securities are weighted based on fundamental or quantitative factors, not just market capitalization.

* Higher Returns Potential: These ETFs are designed to capture excess returns (alpha) relative to a benchmark.

* Lower Costs: Smart beta strategies often combine active and passive management elements at a lower cost than traditional active funds.

* A. Rules-based: Correct answer. Smart beta ETFs are built on rule-based frameworks designed to achieve specific investment objectives.

141. Frage

An advisor wants to explain the benefits of labour sponsored funds (LSVCC) to some of his clients. With which client should the advisor have this discussion?

Client 1	The client is in their prime earning years. They are looking to add risk in their portfolio and is comfortable with investments with prolonged lockup periods. Tax benefits in the form of federal tax credits would certainly be a plus.
Client 2	The client is in their early earning years. While there's an appetite for more risk, the client cares a great deal about liquidity.
Client 3	The client is seeking investments that can provide offsetting capital for their portfolio. The client is generally willing to take on risk to tolerate lower liquidity. The client is insistent that tax credits can be carried forward.
Client 4	The client has a fairly stable income, but has indicated a willingness to add risk to their portfolio. While tolerant of lower liquidity, the client is particularly sensitive to high fees.
