ISTQB Certified Tester - Performance Testing Sample Questions (Q33-Q38):

NEW QUESTION # 33
Why is it important to specify how failures are handled during test execution?

- A. To ensure all defects are captured
- B. To ensure that new failures are not introduced
- C. To meet the expectations of the business stakeholders
- D. To minimize distractions during testing

Answer: B

Explanation:
During performance testing, it is crucial to define failure handling procedures to ensure that failures do not introduce additional errors into the test execution process. This helps maintain test accuracy and avoid misleading results.
Option A (Meeting stakeholder expectations) is important but not the primary reason for defining failure handling.
Option C (Capturing all defects) is a general testing principle, not specific to failure handling in performance tests.
Option D (Minimizing distractions) is not a valid reason for defining failure handling.

NEW QUESTION # 34
You have run a load test. When examining the metrics, you see that the virtual users experienced many timeouts and excessive wait times. The system throughput metrics exceeded expected results, even during peak times.
Based on your analysis, what conclusion should you draw?

- A. Processing speed is too slow.
- B. Network infrastructure should be investigated.

- C. New test data is needed.
- D. Virtual users are exhibiting impatient behavior.

Answer: A

Explanation:
If timeouts and excessive wait times occur, but throughput is high, this suggests that the system is unable to process requests fast enough. This points to slow processing speed due to CPU bottlenecks, memory limitations, or inefficient database queries.
Option A (Network infrastructure investigation) would be relevant if throughput was low or variable.
Option C (Impatient virtual users) is irrelevant; virtual users follow scripted behaviors.
Option D (New test data) does not address the core issue.

NEW QUESTION # 35
Which of the following is a general principle of performance testing?

- A. Tests must align with the ideal outcome of stakeholders.
- B. Tests must be executable within the project timeframe.
- C. Test results must vary when the tests are run repeatedly on an unchanged system.
- D. Test results must be comparable to tester expectations.

Answer: B

Explanation:
Performance testing is time-sensitive and must be designed to fit within the constraints of the project timeline. If performance tests take too long to execute, they may not be feasible within a given sprint or development cycle. The results should be reproducible, meaning the same test on an unchanged system should yield the same results (making option C incorrect). While stakeholder expectations are important, performance tests should be objective and based on defined benchmarks rather than subjective expectations (making option D incorrect).

NEW QUESTION # 36
What is typically the result of oversaturation of system resources during performance testing?

- A. Error logging will decrease.
- B. Response time will be slow under significant load levels.
- C. Response time will gradually improve over a period of time.
- D. The size of the database will gradually decrease.

Answer: B

Explanation:
When system resources are oversaturated (e.g., CPU, RAM, or network bandwidth), response times will degrade because the system struggles to process requests efficiently. This is a key performance bottleneck indicator.
Option A is incorrect because response times do not improve under heavy load; they typically worsen.
Option C is incorrect because error logging may actually increase rather than decrease under stress.
Option D is incorrect because database size is independent of system saturation unless records are actively purged.

NEW QUESTION # 37
Which of the following is a best practice to include in performance test scripts when verifying results?

- A. Increase the number of scripts executed to provide greater coverage.
- B. Hold the development team accountable for system performance.
- C. Verify that correct information was added to the database.
- D. Add transaction timers to collect response times.

Answer: C
