SAP Certified Associate - Back-End Developer - ABAP Cloud Sample Questions (Q25-Q30):

NEW QUESTION # 25

What are some features of ABAP SQQL? Note: There are 2 correct answers to this question.

- A. It is first processed by the Database Interface.
- B. It is integrated in the ABAP programming language.
- C. It is only valid on the HANA database.
- D. It is directly executed on the HANA database.

Answer: A,B

NEW QUESTION # 26

In an Access Control Object, which clauses are used? Note: There are 3 correct answers to this question.

- A. Revoke (to remove access to the data source)
- B. Crant (to identify the data source)
- C. Where (to specify the access conditions)
- D. Define role (to specify the role name)
- E. Return code (to assign the return code of the authority check)

Answer: A,C,D

Explanation:
An Access Control Object (ACO) is a CDS annotation that defines the access control rules for a CDS view entity. An ACO consists of one or more clauses that specify the role name, the data source, the access conditions, and the return code of the authority check12. Some of the clauses that are used in an ACO are:
Where (to specify the access conditions): This clause is used to define the logical expression that determines whether a user has access to the data source or not. The expression can use the fields of the data source, the parameters of the CDS view entity, or the predefined variables $user and $session. The expression can also use the functions check_authorization and check_role to perform additional authority checks12.
Define role (to specify the role name): This clause is used to assign a name to the role that is defined by the ACO. The role name must be unique within the namespace of the CDS view entity and must not contain any special characters. The role name can be used to reference the ACO in other annotations, such as @AccessControl.authorizationCheck or @AccessControl.grant12.
Revoke (to remove access to the data source): This clause is used to explicitly deny access to the data source for a user who meets the conditions of the where clause. The revoke clause overrides any grant clause that might grant access to the same user. The revoke clause can be used to implement the principle of least privilege or to enforce data segregation12.
You cannot do any of the following:
Grant (to identify the data source): This is not a valid clause in an ACO. The grant clause is a separate annotation that is used to grant access to a CDS view entity or a data source for a user who has a specific role. The grant clause can reference an ACO by its role name to apply the access conditions defined by the ACO12.
Return code (to assign the return code of the authority check): This is not a valid clause in an ACO. The return code of the authority check is a predefined variable that is set by the system after performing the access control check. The return code can be used in the where clause of the ACO to specify different access conditions based on the outcome of the check12.

NEW QUESTION # 27

In a test method you call method cl_abap_unit_assert=>assert_equals(..) in the following way:
CLASS ltcl1 DEFINITION FOR TESTING RISK LEVEL HARMLESS DURATION SHORT.
PRIVATE SECTION.
METHODS m1 FOR TESTING.
ENDCLASS.
CLASS ltcl1 IMPLEMENTATION.
METHOD m1.

DATA: go_test_object TYPE REF TO zcl_to_be_tested.
CONSTANTS: lco_exp TYPE string VALUE 'test2'.
CREATE OBJECT go_test_object.
cl_abap_unit_assert=>assert_equals(
EXPORTING act = go_class->mv_attribute exp = lco_exp
msg = 'assert equals failed ' && go_test_object->mv_attribute && ' ' && lco_exp ENDMETHOD.
ENDCLASS.
What will happen if method parameters act and exp are not equal?

- A. The tested unit cannot be transported.
- B. The test will be aborted.
- C. The tested unit will automatically be appended to a default ABAP Test Cockpit Variant.
- D. There will be a message in the test log.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 28

what are valid statements? Note: There are 3 correct answers to this question.

- A. go_if1 may call method m2 with go_if->m2(...).
- B. go_cl1 may call method m11 with go_cl1->if1~m1(...).
- C. go_if1 may call method m1 with go_if1->m1(...).
- D. Instead of go_cl1 = NEW #(...) you could use go_if1 = NEW cl1(...).
- E. Instead of go_cl1 = NEW #(...) you could use go_if1 = NEW #(...).

Answer: B,C,D

NEW QUESTION # 29

When you join two database tables, which of the following rules applies to the database fields you use in the join?

- A. They must always have an alias name.
- B. They must have the same name, e.g. col1 = col1.
- C. They must be compared with an ON condition.
- D. They must be at the same position in their table, for example left_table-col1 = right_table-col1.

Answer: C

Explanation:
Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:
When performing a JOIN in ABAP SQL or CDS:
* The key requirement is to specify the ON condition, which compares fields from the two tables, typically via equality (e.g., ON a.field = b.field). Hence, Option D is correct.
* The fields do not need to have the same name (Option C is incorrect).
* The position in the table structure is irrelevant (Option A is incorrect).
* An alias name is optional, not mandatory (Option B is incorrect).
Reference: SAP Help 3, page 3 - When defining CDS views with joins, the ON condition defines the semantic relationship between entities.
