NEW QUESTION # 107
At Cloud Kicks, users are able to run reports. However, when users try to export a report, they are taken to a login screen and prompted for additional verification.
What is causing this issue?

- A. Users need to update their browser to the latest version.
- B. Exporting Is configured to require a high assurance session.
- C. The users are logged Into an Insecure network.
- D. The users' profile is missing the Export Reports permission.

Answer: B

Explanation:
A high assurance session is a type of session security level that requires users to verify their identity using a second factor of authentication, such as Salesforce Authenticator, a verification code, or a security key.
Administrators can configure certain actions or permissions to require a high assurance session, such as exporting reports, viewing encrypted data, or accessing connected apps.
If users are able to run reports but are taken to a login screen and prompted for additional verification when they try to export a report, it could be because exporting is configured to require a high assurance session. This means that users need to use a second factor of authentication to export reports, even if they have already logged in with their username and password. References:

NEW QUESTION # 108
The administrator at Cloud Kicks is evaluating the capabilities of Schema Builder to create custom objects and custom fields. The administrator likes the user interface of the Schema Builder, as opposed to the new object and field wizards, but also notices some limitations.
What needs to be configured from the object manager instead of Schema Builder?

- A. Allow Reports and Activities
- B. Enable field history tracking
- C. Make available for Customer Postal.
- D. Add custom fields to the page layout.

Answer: B

Explanation:
While the Schema Builder is a powerful tool in Salesforce for visually creating and managing custom objects and fields, there are certain configurations that must be done in Object Manager rather than Schema Builder.
One of these configurations is enabling field history tracking.
* Field History Tracking:

* Field history tracking cannot be configured directly within Schema Builder. This setting must be enabled from within the Object Manager, where administrators can specify which fields on an object should have their changes tracked.
* Enabling field history tracking involves navigating to the object in Object Manager, accessing the field history tracking settings, and selecting specific fields to track.
* Limitations of Schema Builder:
* Schema Builder is useful for quickly creating custom objects, relationships, and fields, but it does not support all configurations, such as enabling field history tracking, defining object-level permissions, or setting advanced object configurations.
* For these types of configurations, administrators need to return to Object Manager where these settings are available.
Incorrect options:
* Add custom fields to the page layout: This task is typically done within Object Manager, but Schema Builder does allow customization of page layouts to a certain extent through drag-and-drop.
* Make available for Customer Portal: Schema Builder does not control portal availability; however, this is managed through Object Manager settings related to record visibility for portal users.
* Allow Reports and Activities: This setting can be configured in Schema Builder when initially creating an object, but further refinements and permission settings must often be done in Object Manager.
In conclusion, enabling field history tracking requires access to the Object Manager, as it cannot be configured through Schema Builder.
