Oracle Database SQL Sample Questions (Q289-Q294):

NEW QUESTION # 289

In the PROMOTIONS table, the PROMO_BEGIN_DATE column is of data type DATE and the default date format is DD-MON-RR.

Which two statements are true about expressions using PROMO_BEGIN_DATE contained in a query?

- A. `PROMO_BEGIN_DATE-SYSDATE` will return a number.
- B. `TO_NUMBER(PROMO_BEGIN_DATE)-5` will return number

- C. `PROMO_BEGIN_DATE-5` will return a date.
- D. `TO_DATE(PROMO_BEGIN_DATE * 5)` will return a date
- E. `PROMO_BEGIN_DATE-SYSDATE` will return an error.

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

A . This statement is incorrect because `TO_NUMBER` expects a character string as an argument, not a date. Directly converting a date to a number without an intermediate conversion to a character string would result in an error. B. This statement is incorrect. Multiplying a date by a number does not make sense in SQL, and attempting to convert such an expression to a date will also result in an error. C. This statement is correct. Subtracting two dates in Oracle SQL results in the number of days between those dates, hence the result is a number. D. This statement is correct. Subtracting a number from a date in Oracle SQL will subtract that number of days from the date, returning another date. E. This statement is incorrect. As stated in C, subtracting a date from `SYSDATE` correctly returns the number of days between those two dates, not an error.

These concepts are explained in the Oracle Database SQL Language Reference, which details date arithmetic in SQL.

- B. `(employee_id NUMBER, login_id NUMBER, employee_name VARCHAR2(100), hire_date DATE, CONSTRAINT emp_id_uk UNIQUE (employee_id, login_id); CONSTRAINT emp_id_nn NOT NULL (employee_id, login_id); CREATE TABLE employees`
- C. `(employee_id NUMBER, login_id NUMBER, employee_name VARCHAR2(100), hire_date DATE, CONSTRAINT emp_id_uk UNIQUE (employee_id, login_id)); CREATE TABLE employees`
