All of the following are factors in determining whether an organization can craft a common solution to the privacy requirements of multiple jurisdictions except:

- A. effective date of most restrictive law
 - B. implementation complexity
 - C. legal regulations
 - D. cost
- Answer- Building a privacy strategy may mean changing the mindset and perspective of an entire organization. Everyone in an organization has a role to play in protecting the personal information an organization collects, uses and discloses. Management needs to approve funding to resource and equip the privacy team, fund important privacy enhancing resources and technologies, support privacy initiatives such as training and awareness, and hold employees accountable for following privacy policies and procedures. Sales personnel must secure business contact data and respect the choices of these individuals. Developers and engineers must incorporate effective security controls, build safe websites, and create solutions that require the collection or use of only the data necessary to accomplish the purpose. NEW QUESTION # 186

Which of the following is TRUE about the Data Protection Impact Assessment (DPIA) process as required under the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR)?

- A. The DPIA report must be published to demonstrate the transparency of the data processing.
- B. The DPIA is required if the processing activity entails risk to the rights and freedoms of an EU individual.
- C. The DPIA must include a description of the proposed processing operation and its purpose.
- D. The DPIA result must be reported to the corresponding supervisory authority.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation

The statement that is true about the Data Protection Impact Assessment (DPIA) process as required under the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) is that the DPIA must include a description of the proposed processing operation and its purpose. According to Article 35(7) of the GDPR, a DPIA shall contain at least:

- * "a systematic description of the envisaged processing operations and the purposes of the processing";
- * "an assessment of the necessity and proportionality of the processing operations in relation to the purposes";
- * "an assessment of the risks to the rights and freedoms of data subjects";
- * "the measures envisaged to address the risks";
- * "safeguards", "security measures";
- * "mechanisms to ensure the protection of personal data";
- * "to demonstrate compliance with this Regulation taking into account the rights and legitimate interests of data subjects and other persons concerned"⁵ Therefore, a DPIA must include a description of what data processing activities are planned and why they are needed as part of its content. This helps to provide a clear overview of the processing operation and its objectives as well as to assess its necessity and proportionality in relation to its purposes⁶ References: 5:

NEW QUESTION # 187

SCENARIO

Please use the following to answer the next QUESTION:

Richard McAdams recently graduated law school and decided to return to the small town of Lexington, Virginia to help run his aging grandfather's law practice. The elder McAdams desired a limited, lighter role in the practice, with the hope that his grandson would eventually take over when he fully retires. In addition to hiring Richard, Mr. McAdams employs two paralegals, an administrative assistant, and a part-time IT specialist who handles all of their basic networking needs. He plans to hire more employees once Richard gets settled and assesses the office's strategies for growth.

Immediately upon arrival, Richard was amazed at the amount of work that needed to be done in order to modernize the office, mostly in regard to the handling of clients' personal data. His first goal is to digitize all the records kept in file cabinets, as many of the documents contain personally identifiable financial and medical data. Also, Richard has noticed the massive amount of copying by the administrative assistant throughout the day, a practice that not only adds daily to the number of files in the file cabinets, but may create security issues unless a formal policy is firmly in place. Richard is also concerned with the overuse of the communal copier/printer located in plain view of clients who frequent the building. Yet another area of concern is the use of the same fax machine by all of the employees. Richard hopes to reduce its use dramatically in order to ensure that personal data receives the utmost security and protection, and eventually move toward a strict Internet faxing policy by the year's end.

Richard expressed his concerns to his grandfather, who agreed, that updating data storage, data security, and an overall approach to increasing the protection of personal data in all facets is necessary. Mr. McAdams granted him the freedom and authority to do so.

Now Richard is not only beginning a career as an attorney, but also functioning as the privacy officer of the small firm. Richard plans to meet with the IT employee the following day, to get insight into how the office computer system is currently set-up and managed.

Richard believes that a transition from the use of fax machine to Internet faxing provides all of the following security benefits

EXCEPT?

- A. The ability to encrypt the transmitted faxes through a secure server.

- B. Greater accessibility to the faxes at an off-site location.
- C. Reduction of the risk of data being seen or copied by unauthorized personnel.
- D. The ability to store faxes electronically, either on the user's PC or a password-protected network server.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

A transition from the use of fax machine to Internet faxing does not provide the security benefit of greater accessibility to the faxes at an off-site location. This is because Internet faxing requires a secure internet connection and a compatible device to access the faxes online. If the user is at an off-site location that does not have these requirements, they may not be able to access their faxes.

Furthermore, greater accessibility may not necessarily be a security benefit, as it may also increase the risk of unauthorized access or interception by third parties. Therefore, this option is not a security benefit of Internet faxing.

The other options are security benefits of Internet faxing. The ability to encrypt the transmitted faxes through a secure server ensures that the faxes are protected from eavesdropping or tampering during transmission. The reduction of the risk of data being seen or copied by unauthorized personnel eliminates the need for physical security measures such as locks or shredders for fax machines and paper documents. The ability to store faxes electronically, either on the user's PC or a password-protected network server, allows for better control and management of the faxes and reduces the storage space and costs associated with paper documents.

NEW QUESTION # 188

Which of the following privacy frameworks are legally binding?

- A. Binding Corporate Rules (BCRs).
- B. Organization for Economic Co-Operation and Development (OECD) Guidelines.
- C. Generally Accepted Privacy Principles (GAPP).
- D. Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) Privacy Framework.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Binding Corporate Rules (BCRs) are a set of legally binding rules that allow multinational corporations or groups of companies to transfer personal data across borders within their organization in compliance with the EU data protection law¹ BCRs are approved by the competent data protection authorities in the EU and are enforceable by data subjects and the authorities² BCRs are one of the mechanisms recognized by the EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) to ensure an adequate level of protection for personal data transferred outside the European Economic Area (EEA)³

NEW QUESTION # 189

SCENARIO

Please use the following to answer the next question:

Edufox has hosted an annual convention of users of its famous e-learning software platform, and over time, it has become a grand event. It fills one of the large downtown conference hotels and overflows into the others, with several thousand attendees enjoying three days of presentations, panel discussions and networking. The convention is the centerpiece of the company's product rollout schedule and a great training opportunity for current users. The sales force also encourages prospective clients to attend to get a better sense of the ways in which the system can be customized to meet diverse needs and understand that when they buy into this system, they are joining a community that feels like family.

This year's conference is only three weeks away, and you have just heard news of a new initiative supporting it:

a smartphone app for attendees. The app will support late registration, highlight the featured presentations and provide a mobile version of the conference program. It also links to a restaurant reservation system with the best cuisine in the areas featured. "It's going to be great," the developer, Deidre Hoffman, tells you, "if, that is, we actually get it working!" She laughs nervously but explains that because of the tight time frame she'd been given to build the app, she outsourced the job to a local firm. "It's just three young people," she says, "but they do great work." She describes some of the other apps they have built. When asked how they were selected for this job, Deidre shrugs. "They do good work, so I chose them." Deidre is a terrific employee with a strong track record. That's why she's been charged to deliver this rushed project. You're sure she has the best interests of the company at heart, and you don't doubt that she's under pressure to meet a deadline that cannot be pushed back. However, you have concerns about the app's handling of personal data and its security safeguards. Over lunch in the break room, you start to talk to her about it, but she quickly tries to reassure you, "I'm sure with your help we can fix any security issues if we have to, but I doubt there'll be any. These people build apps for a living, and they know what they're doing. You worry too much, but that's why you're so good at your job!"

You see evidence that company employees routinely circumvent the privacy officer in developing new initiatives. How can you best draw attention to the scope of this problem?

- A. Insist upon one-on-one consultation with each person who works around the privacy officer.
- B. Develop a metric showing the number of initiatives launched without consultation and include it in reports, presentations, and consultation.
- C. Take your concerns straight to the Chief Executive Officer.
- D. Hold discussions with the department head of anyone who fails to consult with the privacy officer.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 190

SCENARIO

Please use the following to answer the next QUESTION:

As the Director of data protection for Consolidated Records Corporation, you are justifiably pleased with your accomplishments so far. Your hiring was precipitated by warnings from regulatory agencies following a series of relatively minor data breaches that could easily have been worse. However, you have not had a reportable incident for the three years that you have been with the company. In fact, you consider your program a model that others in the data storage industry may note in their own program development.

You started the program at Consolidated from a jumbled mix of policies and procedures and worked toward coherence across departments and throughout operations. You were aided along the way by the program's sponsor, the vice president of operations, as well as by a Privacy Team that started from a clear understanding of the need for change.

Initially, your work was greeted with little confidence or enthusiasm by the company's "old guard" among both the executive team and frontline personnel working with data and interfacing with clients. Through the use of metrics that showed the costs not only of the breaches that had occurred, but also projections of the costs that easily could occur given the current state of operations, you soon had the leaders and key decision-makers largely on your side. Many of the other employees were more resistant, but face-to-face meetings with each department and the development of a baseline privacy training program achieved sufficient "buy-in" to begin putting the proper procedures into place.

Now, privacy protection is an accepted component of all current operations involving personal or protected data and must be part of the end product of any process of technological development. While your approach is not systematic, it is fairly effective.

You are left contemplating:

What must be done to maintain the program and develop it beyond just a data breach prevention program?

How can you build on your success?

What are the next action steps?

What analytic can be used to track the financial viability of the program as it develops?

- A. Breach impact modeling.
- B. Return to investment.
- C. Gap analysis.
- D. Cost basis.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

This analytic can be used to track the financial viability of the program as it develops, as it measures the net benefit of the program compared to its cost. It can show how much value the program adds to the organization by preventing or reducing data breaches, fines, lawsuits, reputational damage and other potential costs.
