- A. RDP, VNC and SSH
- B. RDP, SSH and DHCP
- C. SSH, DNS and DHCP
- D. RDP, DNS and VNC

Answer: A

Explanation:

management and privileged user sessions, allowing secure access to internal applications or systems without exposing the network or requiring VPN connections.

The study guide clearly states that Privileged Remote Access capabilities focus on these protocols to ensure secure, monitored, and controlled remote sessions for administrators and privileged users, supporting remote desktop and shell access securely .

NEW QUESTION # 16

When users are authenticated using SAML, what are the two most efficient ways of provisioning the users?

- A. Hosted User Database and Directory Server Synchronization
- B. SAML and Hosted User Database
- C. SCIM and Directory Server Synchronization
- D. SCIM and SAML Autoprovisioning

Answer: D

Explanation:

The two most efficient ways to provision users authenticated via SAML are SCIM (System for Cross- domain Identity Management) and SAML Autoprovisioning. SCIM allows automated user provisioning and deprovisioning, while SAML Autoprovisioning enables dynamic user account creation upon authentication, streamlining user lifecycle management.

NEW QUESTION # 17

What does an Endpoint refer to in an API architecture?

- A. Zscaler public service edges
- B. Zscaler API gateway providing access to various components
- C. A URL providing access to a specific resource
- D. An end-user device like a laptop or an OT/IoT device

Answer: C

Explanation:

In API architecture, an Endpoint is defined as a URL or URI that provides access to a specific resource or service within the API. It acts as a point of interaction where clients send requests and receive responses. This is a standard definition across API implementations, including Zscaler's API framework, where each endpoint represents a distinct function or data resource accessible via the API.

Option A refers to physical devices, which are not considered endpoints in API terms. Option C describes network infrastructure components but not API endpoints. Option D describes an API gateway, which manages API traffic but is not itself an endpoint. This explanation is consistent with the Zscaler Digital Transformation study guide's section on Integration and APIs, which clarifies that API endpoints are URLs pointing to specific resources or services within the API framework.
