The White House Executive Order from November 2023 requires companies that develop dual-use foundation models to provide reports to the federal government about all of the following EXCEPT?

- A. The results of red-team testing of each dual-use foundation model.
- B. Any environmental impact study for each dual-use foundation model.
- C. Any current training or development of dual-use foundation models.
- D. The physical and cybersecurity protection measures of their dual-use foundation models.

Answer: B

Explanation:
The White House Executive Order from November 2023 requires companies developing dual-use foundation models to report on their current training or development activities, the results of red-team testing, and the physical and cybersecurity protection measures. However, it does not mandate reports on environmental impact studies for each dual-use foundation model. While environmental considerations are important, they are not specified in this context as a reporting requirement under this Executive Order.
