Lpi Linux Essentials Certificate Exam - version 1.6 Sample Questions (Q51-Q56):

NEW QUESTION # 51

Which of the following directories must be mounted with read and write access if it resides on its own dedicated file system?

- A. /var
- B. /etc
- C. /usr
- D. /lib
- E. /opt

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 52

Which of the following values could be a process ID on Linux?

- A. 60b503cd-019e-4300-a7be-922f074ef5ce
- B. ffB
- C. /bin/bash
- D. /sys/pid/9a14
- E. 0

Answer: E

Explanation:

A process ID on Linux is a unique integer value that identifies a running process. The process ID can range from 0 to a maximum limit, which is usually 32768 or higher, depending on the system configuration. The process ID of 0 is reserved for the kernel's idle task, and the process ID of 1 is reserved for the init system, which is the first process launched by the kernel. The process IDs are assigned sequentially to new processes, and are recycled when a process terminates. Therefore, the only valid value for a process ID among the given options is 21398, which is an integer within the possible range. The other values are not valid process IDs because they are either strings, hexadecimal numbers, or file paths, which do not match the format of a process ID on Linux.

NEW QUESTION # 53

Which of the following commands puts the lines of the file data.csv into alphabetical order?

- A. wc -s data.csv
- B. abc data.csv
- C. sort data.csv
- D. a..z data.csv
- E. grep --sort data.csv

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation

The sort command is used to sort the lines of a file or a stream of input according to a specified criterion, such as alphabetical order, numerical order, reverse order, etc. By default, the sort command sorts the lines in ascending alphabetical order, using the first character of each line as the key. For example, the command `sort data.csv` will sort the lines of the file `data.csv` in alphabetical order and display the output on the screen. If you want to save the sorted output to a new file, you can use the redirection operator (`>`) to specify the output file name. For example, the command `sort data.csv > sorted_data.csv` will sort the lines of the file `data.csv` in alphabetical order and save the output to a new file named `sorted_data.csv`. The other commands are either invalid or do not perform the sorting operation. The `a..z` command does not exist, the `abc` command is a text editor, the `wc` command counts the number of words, lines, and bytes in a file, and the `grep` command searches for a pattern in a file or a stream of input. Therefore, the correct answer is B. References:

NEW QUESTION # 54

Which of the following commands creates an archive `work.tar` from the contents of the directory `./work/`?

- A. `tar work.tar < ./work/`
- B. `tar -cf work.tar ./work/`
- C. `tar -create work.tar -content ./work/`
- D. `tar --new work.tar ./work/`
- E. `tar work > work.tar`

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

The `tar` command in Linux is used to create, extract, list, and manipulate archive files¹. The `-c` option tells the command to create a new archive file. The `-f` option specifies the name of the archive file. The last argument is the name of the directory or file to be archived. Therefore, the command `tar -cf work.tar ./work/` will create an archive file named `work.tar` from the contents of the directory `./work/`. The other options are either invalid or do not create the desired archive file. Option A uses an unrecognized option `--new`. Option C uses an incorrect option `--content` and an incorrect extension `.tgz` for a plain tar archive. Option D and E use an incorrect syntax for redirecting the input or output of the tar command.
