- A. Managing the tranches
- B. Identifying the programme
- C. None of above
- D. Defining the programme

Answer: B

Explanation:

Basic governance arrangements, including programme controls, are established during the 'Identifying the Programme' phase. These initial controls set the foundation for how the programme will be governed, including accountability structures, reporting lines, and approval mechanisms.

The MSP Practitioner states: "Basic governance arrangements to be used in Defining a programme are prepared in identifying a programme," emphasizing the importance of establishing governance early to guide subsequent programme phases effectively. Establishing these controls upfront ensures clarity, reduces ambiguity, and provides a framework within which the programme can operate with discipline and alignment to strategic goals.

Who approves Business Case?

- B. Sponsoring Group
- C. BCM
- D. Programme Manager

Answer: A

The Senior Responsible Owner (SRO) approves the Business Case and is accountable for ensuring it remains valid and aligned with strategic objectives.

The MSP Practitioner states: "SRO approves (as he is accountable for it)." This underscores the SRO's critical role in governing programme justification and ensuring investment decisions remain sound.

While the Sponsoring Group may endorse or sponsor the programme, formal accountability and approval for the Business Case rest with the SRO, ensuring clear responsibility for delivery against agreed benefits.

This accountability helps maintain control and confidence in programme investment and delivery.
