ISTQB Certified Tester AI Testing Exam Sample Questions (Q54-Q59):

NEW QUESTION # 54

When verifying that an autonomous AI-based system is acting appropriately, which of the following are MOST important to include?

- A. Test cases to verify that the system automatically suppresses invalid output data
- B. Test cases to detect the system prompting for unnecessary human intervention
- C. Test cases to detect the system appropriately automating its data input
- D. Test cases to verify that the system automatically confirms the correct classification of training data

Answer: B

Explanation:

When verifying autonomous AI-based systems, a critical aspect is ensuring that they maintain an appropriate level of autonomy while only requesting human intervention when necessary. If an AI system unnecessarily asks for human input, it defeats the purpose of autonomy and can:

- * Slow down operations.
- * Reduce trust in the system.

* Indicate improper confidence thresholds in decision-making.

This is particularly crucial in autonomous vehicles, AI-driven financial trading, and robotic process automation, where excessive human intervention would hinder performance.

* A. Test cases to verify that the system automatically confirms the correct classification of training data# This is relevant for verifying training consistency but not for autonomy validation.

* B. Test cases to detect the system appropriately automating its data input# While relevant, data automation does not directly address the verification of autonomy.

* D. Test cases to verify that the system automatically suppresses invalid output data# This focuses on output filtering rather than decision-making autonomy.

Why are the other options incorrect? Thus, the most critical test case for verifying autonomous AI-based systems is ensuring that it does not unnecessarily request human intervention.

* Section 8.2 - Testing Autonomous AI-Based Systems states that it is crucial to test whether the system requests human intervention only when necessary and does not disrupt autonomy.

NEW QUESTION # 55

You are evaluating the use of a highly accurate pre-trained model that is used widely in industry for a similar use case. There is an intention to apply transfer learning techniques to further customize the model.

Which ONE of the following is the LEAST likely to be a significant risk with this approach?

- A. The functional performance of the system may exhibit bias
- B. The system may be vulnerable to adversarial attacks inherited from the pre-trained model
- C. The functional performance of the pre-trained model could be lower than stakeholders expect
- D. Differences in data preparation steps between the training of the pre-trained model and consequent use of the model may result in reduced functional performance

Answer: C

Explanation:

When using a pre-trained model, especially one that is highly accurate and widely used in industry, it is less likely that the functional performance will be lower than expected, given that it has already been proven effective in similar use cases.

NEW QUESTION # 56

Which ONE of the following is the BEST option to optimize the regression test selection and prevent the regression suite from growing large?

- A. Identifying suitable tests by looking at the complexity of the test cases.
- B. Using a random subset of tests.
- C. Using an AI-based tool to optimize the regression test suite by analyzing past test results
- D. Automating test scripts using AI-based test automation tools.

Answer: C

Explanation:

This is the most effective approach as AI-based tools can analyze historical test data, identify patterns, and prioritize tests that are more likely to catch defects based on past results. This method ensures an optimized and manageable regression test suite by focusing on the most impactful test cases.

NEW QUESTION # 57

Which ONE of the following tests is LEAST likely to be performed during the ML model testing phase?

- A. Testing the speed of the training of the model.
- B. Testing the accuracy of the classification model.
- C. Testing the speed of the prediction by the model.
- D. Testing the API of the service powered by the ML model.

Answer: A

Explanation:

This is least likely to be part of the ML model testing phase. The speed of training is more relevant during the development phase when optimizing and tuning the model. During testing, the focus is more on the model's performance and behavior rather than how quickly it was trained.

NEW QUESTION # 58

Which ONE of the following activities is MOST relevant when addressing the scenario where you have more than the required amount of data available for the training?

SELECT ONE OPTION

- A. Feature selection
- B. Data labeling
- C. Data sampling
- D. Data augmentation

Answer: C

Explanation:

A . Feature selection

Feature selection is the process of selecting the most relevant features from the data. While important, it is not directly about handling excess data.

B . Data sampling

Data sampling involves selecting a representative subset of the data for training. When there is more data than needed, sampling can be used to create a manageable dataset that maintains the statistical properties of the full dataset.

C . Data labeling

Data labeling involves annotating data for supervised learning. It is necessary for training models but does not address the issue of having excess data.

D . Data augmentation

Data augmentation is used to increase the size of the training dataset by creating modified versions of existing data. It is useful when there is insufficient data, not when there is excess data.

Therefore, the correct answer is B because data sampling is the most relevant activity when dealing with an excess amount of data for training.
