serial numbers on the device?

- A. Rear panel near the power supplies
- B. Top surface of each switch
- C. Bottom surface of each switch
- D. Front panel near the status LEDs

Answer: A

Explanation:

The serial number for Cisco switches is typically found on a label located on the rear panel near the power supplies. This positioning allows technicians to quickly access identification information even when the device is not powered on.

This label is essential for inventory tracking, RMA procedures, and registration for support. Serial numbers are not typically placed on the top or bottom surfaces for devices mounted in a rack, as those areas are less accessible.

NEW QUESTION # 16

What is the primary function of a wireless LAN controller in a Cisco Unified Wireless Network solution?

- A. To manage and configure associated access points centrally
- B. To operate at Layer 3 of the OSI model
- C. To translate data into a frame format for transmission
- D. To provide wireless connectivity to LAN devices

Answer: A

Explanation:

The Wireless LAN Controller (WLC) plays a central role in Cisco's Unified Wireless Network solution by providing centralized management, configuration, and monitoring for multiple access points (APs). It allows for streamlined policy enforcement, seamless mobility, load balancing, and security management across wireless networks.

While WLCs facilitate wireless connectivity indirectly, their main role is to centrally manage and control access points - not to function as Layer 3 routers or format data frames.

NEW QUESTION # 17

What is the primary advantage of installing and deploying Cisco UCS E-Series servers in branch office routers?

- A. To serve as a backup storage system for the main data center
- B. To increase the packet forwarding capacity of the router
- C. To enhance the wireless capabilities of the router
- D. To provide local compute power for edge applications

Answer: D

Explanation:

Cisco UCS E-Series servers are integrated, blade-style compute modules that can be installed inside Cisco ISR (Integrated Services Routers). Their primary advantage is to provide local compute resources in branch offices without needing a full data center environment.

This enables:

Hosting of virtual machines or applications locally

Reduced latency for edge computing

Lowered dependency on central data center resources

These servers are ideal for running branch-office workloads, virtualization, or edge analytics, allowing enterprises to deploy scalable compute capabilities closer to the data source.
